Commissioner Andy Gipson Announces May 2022 Wild Hog Control Program Application Period

By Chris McDonald
Director of Federal and
Environmental Affairs - MDAC

Commissioner Andy Gipson announced that the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce (MDAC) will begin accepting a new round of applications for its Wild Hog Control Program (WHCP) on Monday, May 2. The application period will close on Monday May 16. All Mississippi counties are eligible for the application period.

Through the WHCP, MDAC provides "smart" wild hog traps to landowners and managers for the control of wild hogs on private agricultural and forestry lands in Mississippi. MDAC will provide the training necessary to use the "smart" traps and technical guidance regarding the most effective methods to trap and control wild hogs on private lands. Applications must be completed and submitted online at www.mdac.ms.gov/whcp. Submitted applications will be evaluated based on the number of acres available for trapping, historical agricultural losses caused by wild hogs on the property and current trapping efforts on the property. A cooperative application is encouraged for small acreage (i.e., adjoining land managers of small parcels should work together to submit one application). Traps will be available for one-month intervals, dependent upon use and success. One trap per 500 – 1,000 acres is recommended, depending on landscape and land use.

Visit www.mdac.ms.gov/whcp for program guidelines, applications and additional information. Submit questions regarding the WHCP to Chris McDonald at chris@mdac.ms.gov.

From Our Kitchen To Yours

It's Crawfish Season!!

****

Crawfish Bisque

6 tablespoons butter
1 onion, chopped
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
2 cups chicken broth
3 cups half-and-half cream
1 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 pounds peeled crawfish tails
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 pinch cayenne pepper, or to taste

Melt the butter in a large saucepan over medium heat, and cook and stir the onion until golden, about eight minutes. Stir in the flour until smooth and cook and stir the mixture until it turns a pale golden color, about five minutes. Whisk in the chicken broth, stirring constantly to avoid lumps, then mix in the half-and-half, salt crawfish tails, Worcestershire sauce, and cayenne pepper. Reduce heat to medium-low and continue whisking as soup comes to a simmer. Allow the bisque to simmer for about five minutes, until slightly thickened. Do not boil.

Crawfish Pasta

2 (8 ounce) packages angel hair pasta
1/2 cup butter
6 cups heavy whipping cream
1 cup chopped green onions
1 1/2 pounds peeled crawfish tails
3 tablespoons Cajun seasoning

In a large pot of boiling salted water, cook angel hair pasta until al dente. Drain. In a large sauté pan, heat butter over medium heat until melted. Stir in the Cajun seasoning and heavy cream. Cook until sauce is reduced by half. Stir in the green onions and crawfish and heat thoroughly. Serve over angel hair pasta.

Go-To Crawfish Etouffee

1/2 cup butter
1 onion, diced
1 green bell pepper, chopped
1 bunch green onions, chopped
2 stalks celery, chopped
1 (10.75 ounce) can condensed golden mushroom soup
3/4 cup chopped fresh parsley
1 teaspoon Cajun seasoning, or to taste
Salt and ground black pepper to taste
2 pounds peeled crawfish tail meat

Melt butter in a large, heavy skillet over medium heat, and stir in the onion, green bell pepper, green onions, and celery; cook the vegetables, stirring frequently, until onion is translucent, and the vegetables have begun to soften, about 10 minutes. Stir in the golden mushroom soup, parsley, Cajun seasoning, salt, and black pepper, and bring the sauce to a boil. Gently mix in the crawfish tail meat, and simmer until the crawfish tails are opaque, 10 to 15 minutes. Serve over rice if desired.

Baked Crawfish Dip

1 pound cooked and peeled whole crawfish tails
2 (8 ounce) packages cream cheese, room temperature
1/4 cup sour cream
4 stalks green onions, chopped
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 tablespoon spicy brown mustard
1 teaspoon liquid shrimp and crab boil seasoning
1 teaspoon dry bread crumbs

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Combine crawfish tails, cream cheese, sour cream, green onions, garlic, mustard, and crab boil seasoning in a large mixing bowl. Mix with an electric mixer until the consistency is nice and creamy. Place mixture in an oven-safe dish. Sprinkle bread crumbs on top of the mixture. Bake in the preheated oven until the top is lightly browned, and the dip is heated through, about 20 minutes.

Producers Expect to Plant More Cotton, Soybeans in 2022

By Nathan Gregory
MSU Extension Service

More than half of the 4.29 million total acres of row crops expected to be planted this year in Mississippi are soybean fields, but the growth in cotton acreage may be the most significant increase over 2021.

The National Agricultural Statistics Service, a branch of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, released its annual prospective plantings report March 31. Surveys are conducted with farm operators nationwide during the first two weeks of March to collect data on planting intentions for the upcoming season.

The report estimates how many acres of soybeans, cotton, corn, rice and peanuts that producers intend to plant in the upcoming growing season. It also provides updated estimates of expected hay and winter wheat acreage. The report serves as a key market signal, as the acreage estimates will serve as the foundation of most row-crop supply projections for 2022.

Soybean producers in Mississippi intend to plant 2.35 million acres in 2022, up 6% from last year. Cotton acreage intentions are at 500,000 acres, up 11% from the 450,000 acres planted last year.

Corn producers intend to plant 610,000 acres, which is down 16% from the 730,000 acres planted in 2021. Rice acreage is estimated at 100,000 acres, down 5% from last year.

Brian Pieralisi, a cotton specialist with the Mississippi State University Extension Service, said most of the cotton producers he has spoken with said they planned to plant more cotton this year as soon as last year's harvest wrapped up.

"The acres originally intended for cotton in 2021 were higher than the harvested crop. We had a wet spring, which delayed planting and switched some intended cotton acres to soybean," Pieralisi said. "Part of the forecasted increase is getting back to the 2021 intended acreage, and the high commodity prices themselves were also a factor."

Soybeans and cotton took some acreage from corn. MSU Extension corn specialist Erick Larson said that even with the decreased intended acreage, 610,000 acres would still exceed the state's five-year average.

"Corn requires more nitrogen fertilizer than the other row crops we grow, and considering the substantial increase in fertilizer expenses and other agricultural inputs is playing into the intention estimates," Larson said. "This estimate is still a solid acreage for corn. The weather we have in April will play a major role in how much is actually planted compared to the estimate since there were so few opportunities to plant in March because of cold and rainy weather."

Will Maples, MSU Extension agricultural economist, said high input costs limited producer willingness on a national level to bring more land into production.

"In years past, when we have seen the type of commodity price increase we have seen over the past year, we would expect to see an increase in total planted acreage," he said. "This acreage response just didn't occur this year.

"There was a lot of uncertainty due to high commodity prices, but also high costs across all inputs and supply concerns," Maples added. "It was a perfect storm of factors that many farmers have probably never faced when making a crop mix decision. We have seen significantly higher chemical, seed, and fertilizer costs this spring than last year."

Total principal acreage in Mississippi was up 1% from 2021; the main change was the crop mix.

"The main driver for soybeans was high prices and the lower input costs compared to other crops," Maples said. "Cotton was driven by higher market prices, while high input costs hurt corn acreage this year. Rice acreage remained flat from last year due to weaker market prices and high inputs relative to other crops."

Maples said a key item in the USDA report was how corn and soybean acreage would be split nationwide. Soybean intentions for the entire country are up 4%, while corn intentions are down 4%.

"I personally leaned toward us planting more corn than soybeans, given market signals of high corn prices relative to soybeans. On the other hand, there was an argument for more soybeans being planted due to high fertilizer costs and supply concerns on inputs," he said. "Soybeans are a cheaper crop to grow and use less fertilizer than corn. It looks like the higher input cost argument won with 90 million acres of soybeans and 89.5 million acres of corn planted nationally."

Internationally, Brazil has faced severe drought this spring in its southern soybean-growing region during sensitive crop stages. USDA initially projected Brazil to have a record soybean crop this year, but due to drought conditions, production fell to 8% lower than 2021.

"This has led to stronger U.S. soybean exports through January and February than normal," Maples said, "which has supported the soybean market."

All hay acres expected to be harvested in Mississippi are estimated at 610,000 acres, down 10,000 acres from 2021. Winter wheat acreage in Mississippi is up 5% from last year to an estimated 100,000 acres in 2022. Peanut producers plan to plant 20,000 acres, up 11% from 2021.

2022 PLANTING INTENTIONS

COMMODITY	INTENDED ACREAGE	PERCENTAGE CHANGE FROM 2021
Soybeans	2,350,000	▲ 6%
Cotton	500,000	▲ 11%
Corn	610,000	▼ 16%

Prune Citrus Each Spring to Keep Them Producing

By Dr. Gary R. Bachman
MSU Extension Service

I spent time outside this weekend enjoying my landscape and garden and trying to get caught up with late-winter/early-spring pruning. I spent a couple of hours in my citrus grove marveling that I can grow such a variety of these delicious fruit trees.

I've found that most years, there seems to be a difference in flowering among the trees. I've thought that maybe citrus will get into the alternate bearing pattern that is so common in the live oaks here on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

But this year, it seems that every one of my citrus trees is bursting with flower buds. I smelled the sweet aroma of the opening flowers on the gentle breeze. My Rio Red grapefruit is loaded with flowers, and I can hardly wait to try the first grapefruit I've ever grown.

Pruning citrus is a garden task that needs to be performed every year. These trees produce an abundance of new growth all over, up and down the trunk and along every branch. These new shoots must be removed, and most can be simply rubbed off with your thumb.

This is the time of the year to look for and remove any growth popping out of the rootstock. Citruses, like many other fruit trees, are grafted. The rootstock is a hardy selection, and the scion -- the citrus we want to grow -- is grafted onto the rootstock.

It's easy to see the new rootstock growth, as it typically is trifoliate, while the desirable scion has broader leaves. There could also be a difference in the amount and length of thorns. If allowed to grow, the rootstock will produce fruit that is inedible.

The other important pruning that you need to do on your citrus is to remove any dead or crossing branches. This type of pruning is common when maintaining any woody landscape plants.

Each winter causes some of the branch tips to die back a bit, so go ahead and prune them back to green tissue. Remove any crossing branches to prevent damage caused by branches rubbing against each other. It also opens up the center of the tree for better sunlight penetration and air movement.

While citrus is fairly easy to grow in south Mississippi, home gardeners in the northern part of the state aren't completely out of luck. Many citrus selections are perfectly happy growing in larger containers that can be moved inside during the cold of winter.

Satsuma, Meyer lemon and kumquats have the greatest tolerance to cold. The Extension Service publication, "Growing Citrus in Containers in Mississippi," available at http://extension.msstate.edu/sites/default/files/publications/publications/p2542.pdf, is a good place to start learning about these trees.

If you're concerned about the potential size of citrus trees in containers, there are specialty growers that offer dwarf and smaller-scale citrus varieties.

MDAC Launches New Online Employment Portal for State's Agriculture Community

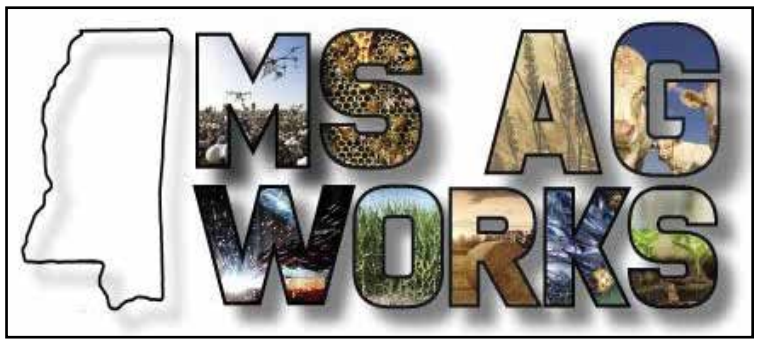
By Hannah East
Marketing Specialist - MDAC

Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Andy Gipson announced the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce (MDAC) is launching MS AgWorks, a new online employment portal dedicated to connecting Mississippi farmers and ranchers with potential employees.

"Now more than ever, we are experiencing shortages in supply chains, transportation of products and labor force," said Commissioner Gipson. "Our agency is committed to supporting Mississippi's agriculture community, and MS AgWorks is a new tool that will assist in bridging the gap between agribusinesses and farms needing employees and those seeking jobs. I encourage all Mississippians looking for work and our employers in the ag industry to take advantage of this new opportunity."

As Mississippi's largest industry, agriculture is responsible for employing nearly 20% of the state's workforce. Workers are in high demand in every aspect of the industry, from loggers, truck drivers, orchard workers and farm hands to salesmen, teachers, business managers and front desk cashiers, technicians, mechanics, welders, and more. MS AgWorks is an online marketing portal that connects those seeking employment with a range of job opportunities at various agribusinesses and farms across the state of Mississippi. Job postings will include internships, full time positions and temporary worker positions.

The MS AgWorks website can be accessed at www.mdac.ms.gov/ms-agworks where anyone looking for work can upload their application materials, and any business or farm that has an employee opening can post jobs. MDAC staff will make the connection between employer and applicant so that further communication and interviews can be scheduled.



Commissioner Gipson Visits with Taiwan Delegation

Commissioner Andy Gipson, along with members of the Mississippi legislature, met with a Taiwan delegation including Director General Robert Lo of the Taipei Economic and Cultural Office from Houston to discuss agricultural trade partnerships.
