Biosecurity Efforts Keep Avian Influenza at Bay

By Bonnie Coblentz
MSU Extension Service

Keeping buffalo wings on menus is a supply chain issue that goes all the way back to procedures farm workers follow to protect the health of commercially grown chickens.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, avian influenza or bird flu is a disease caused by viruses naturally spread among wild aquatic birds worldwide. Although it rarely affects humans, it can infect backyard chicken flocks and commercial poultry operations. When bird flu is diagnosed, the usual response is eradication of the entire flock and surveillance of nearby flocks.

There are many strains of avian influenza. Highly pathogenic avian influenza -- or HPAI -- causes severe disease and mortality rates up to 100% in infected poultry. Poultry with low pathogenic avian influenza may not show clinical signs, but the disease can change into the more severe strains and spread rapidly.

National Public Radio reports that a highly pathogenic bird flu virus has spread to at least 24 states less than two months after the first outbreak was reported in a commercial flock. Nearly 23 million birds have died in the worst U.S. outbreak of the avian flu since 2015, when more than 50 million birds died. Deaths come both from the disease itself and from flocks being culled to try to stop the spread of the disease.

This outbreak is driving up consumer egg and chicken meat prices, which had already been rising due to inflation like many other costs.

Jonathan Moon, research coordinator for the Mississippi State University Department of Poultry Science and researcher with the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station, said HPAI has not yet been detected in Mississippi.

"An HPAI case was confirmed in commercial broiler flocks in southwest Kentucky in February and southeast Missouri in March," Moon said. "Avian influenza has been detected in wild birds in north Alabama and northwest Tennessee."

Despite the fact that there have been no reported HPAI cases in the state to date, Moon said, Mississippi producers and backyard flock owners must remain vigilant to avoid avian influenza.

In commercial poultry production, that vigilance means companies must implement and adhere to a strict biosecurity program.

"Poultry companies in Mississippi participate in the National Poultry Improvement Plan, where there are standards for biosecurity programs," Moon said. "Most producers have different levels of biosecurity and will add precautions when a disease becomes geographically close to their operation."

Jessica Wells, MSU Extension Service poultry specialist, said that commercial poultry producers have their livelihoods threatened in the battle against avian influenza, but backyard flock owners must also be diligent to keep the state disease-free.

"Good biosecurity practices are important regardless of whether or not we are in a heightened situation," Wells said. "Backyard flock owners must understand that this disease must be taken seriously, and even simple biosecurity measures could prevent our state from having a catastrophic event."

These biosecurity measures include keeping backyard flocks fenced or in secluded areas away from other fowl. Change clothes and shoes after tending a personal flock and before visiting another flock.

"Do not allow traffic into your poultry coop, including people and wild animals," she said. "It is very important to keep all wild birds away from your domestic flock, as these birds can carry the disease without showing any signs."

In the current state of heightened security against avian influenza, producers should purchase birds only from registered flocks. She urged backyard flock owners to avoid swapping poultry.

"While losing your flock to this disease can be detrimental to you, the devastation it can cause our state industry could have large ramifications to us as consumers, as well," Wells said. "This disease needs to be taken seriously, which means backyard flock owners should follow all of these simple biosecurity measures."

The MSU Department of Poultry Science is available to offer support for both commercial poultry producers and owners of backyard flocks.

Moon said commercial producers contact their integrator service technician if they suspect their birds are sick. Backyard growers who think there is a possibility their flock is contaminated can contact their local veterinarian or Extension agent, the Mississippi Veterinary Research and Diagnostic Laboratory at 601-420-4700, the Mississippi Board of Animal Health at 601-359-1170, or the animal disaster hotline at 1-888-722-3106.

A variety of MSU Extension Service publications address successful backyard poultry flocks. Find these at http://extension.msstate.edu/publications. May is National Egg Month!

The Mississippi Egg Marketing Board works to expand the market for Mississippi produced eggs. Many of the Mississippi Egg Marketing Board's efforts help to educate the public on the nutritional value and cost effectiveness of eggs in consumers' diets.

The Mississippi Egg Marketing Board recently participated in "Spring Farm Days" at the Mississippi Ag Museum in Jackson, Miss. The event gave school groups and families the opportunity to see where their food comes from. Visitors could watch the eggs hatch into baby chicks.

The Mississippi Egg Marketing Board and the Mississippi Poultry Association recently hosted an "Omelet Luncheon." Guests were invited to make their own omelet. Serving as coaches were members of the State Legislature. House Ag Committee Chairman Bill Pigott (left photo) and Senate Ag Committee Chairman Chuck Younger (right photo) lend a hand with making the perfect omelet.

MDAC to Host International Trade Seminar in Biloxi

By Hannah East
Marketing Specialist - MDAC

The Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce will host an international trade seminar for companies interested in learning more about export resources and assistance through the Southern U.S. Trade Association (SUSTA) on Monday, May 9, at 1:00 p.m. in the Auditorium of the Bolton Building in Biloxi, Mississippi.

"This seminar is a great opportunity for our Mississippi food and ag companies to learn more about export assistance," said Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Andy Gipson. "SUSTA provides connections to international buyers all around the world, and I encourage companies interested in expanding their markets to other countries to join us on May 9."

Mississippi food and agricultural companies are invited to attend this seminar to learn about the variety of export assistance SUSTA offers including connecting companies with international buyers at trade missions and trade shows; assisting companies with their international marketing efforts by providing 50 percent cost-share assistance; and technical assistance through an export helpline and export readiness training.

Examples of products that qualify for SUSTA include fresh produce, snack foods, seafood, sauces and condiments, seasonings, horticulture, consumer-ready retail foods, beverages, pet foods, wood products and more. Magnolia Gardens

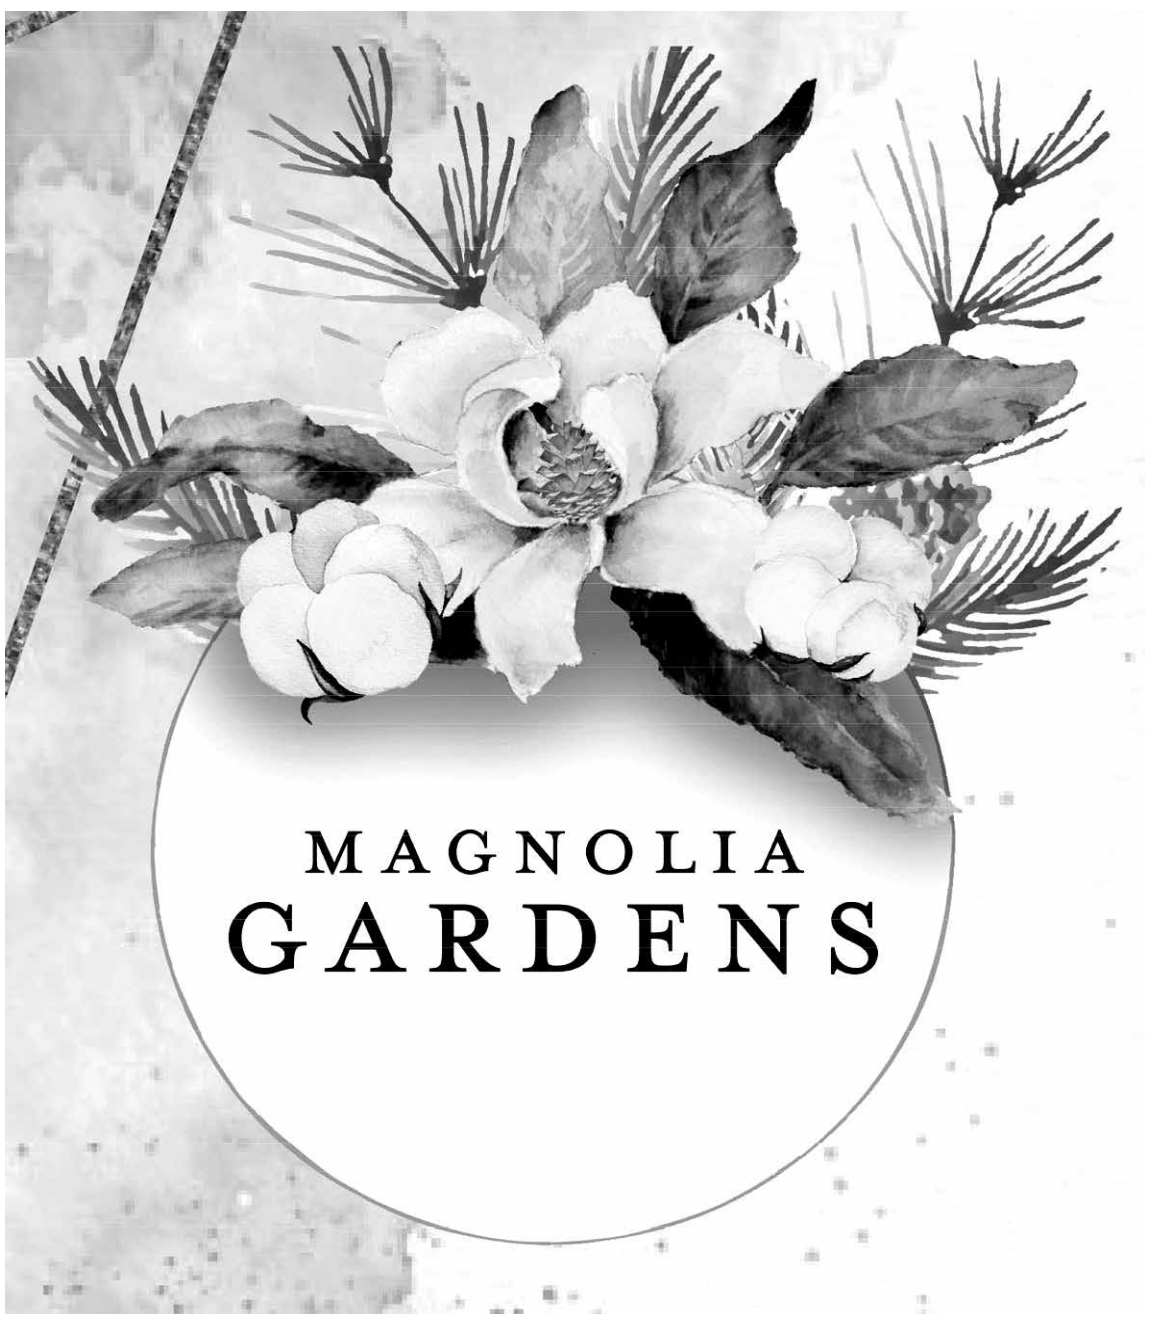
Phase 1 of Magnolia Gardens is complete, and it is beautiful! Located at the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum in Jackson, Miss. This project is 100% doner funded and is a beautiful way to honor the achievements such as graduation, promotions, excellence in work, birthdays, anniversaries, new baby, retirement, and any special occasion you can imagine. You can also donate in memory of a loved one.

All donations go directly to the Gardens for beautification and for maintenance. For every donation we will mail certificates to the honoree and to the designated person for memorial gifts. You will receive an acknowledgement letter for your contribution.

Please contact Ginger Williamson, ginger@mdac.ms.gov or 601-359-1150 with questions or go to www.Msmagnoliagardens.com or scan the code to go directly to the contribution page. Thank you for choosing Magnolia Gardens to honor and to memorialize your loved ones.



MAGNOLIA GARDENS

For six decades, patrons have contributed funds in exchange for a magnolia tree planted in honor of or in memory of loved ones. Over the years the program has planted tens of thousands of magnolia trees along state highways. Due to new regulations, the program needed adjustments. Enjoy the beautiful garden created in honor of your loved ones located at the Mississippi Ag and Forestry Museum in Jackson, Mississippi.

The main garden has a formal design incorporating a variety of plants, trees, flora, stone, water, and wood. The gardens will be strategically lighted to enhance the beauty of the design at night. Enjoy the lush landscape encircling the bronze "Working Man" sculpture donated to the Ag Museum in 2011. Relax on the cypress wood seating to enjoy the container gardens and water features framed with cypress shutters. Floral beds offer seasonal beauty outside of the central area.

The goal is to complete the entire project in 2021, honoring the 60th anniversary of Magnolia Gardens, formerly known as Avenue of Magnolias. We thank you for your contributions thus far. In order to complete the gardens, including the Avenue of Magnolias, $150,000.00 in additional funds are needed.

All donations, regardless of amount, will receive a letter acknowledging their donation. Recipients will receive our Magnolia Garden certificate honoring their loved ones.

Donations exceeding $5,000 will be acknowledged with a plaque at the garden site.

To donate, visit www.msmagnoliagardens.com and select the Contribution Form.

Gifts are Tax Deductible .

Advertising Guidelines

The Mississippi Market Bulletin is published on the 1st and 15th of each month by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce. The Mississippi Market Bulletin is an important way for the Department to disseminate news and information about issues affecting Mississippi's agriculture industry and the Department's operations.

Through its classified advertising section, the Bulletin provides a forum for Mississippi residents to buy and sell agricultural related items while also giving statewide exposure to small farmers who might not normally have the economic resources for such widespread advertising. The Bulletin does not publish commercial or display ads and all items offered for sale must have been produced, raised, grown or operated on the seller's property. Businesses, corporations, dealerships, brokers or other commercial enterprises are not allowed to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin.

- In order to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin you must be a subscriber. It's FREE to advertise, just include your name, mailing address and account number that the subscription is listed under on each ad that you submit (this information will not be printed). Each subscriber is allowed to advertise two ads in the Bulletin, listing one ad per category.
- All listings must be agriculture related (raised, grown, produced or operated on your farm). At the top of your ad, write the category that the ad should be listed under. We reserve the right to edit, revise or reject each ad. Please print or type your ad.

Mississippi Egg Marketing Board Presents Mustard Seed Easter Eggs to First Lady Reeves

By Jennifer Thompson
Director of Regulatory Services
Bureau - MDAC

The Mississippi Egg Marketing Board presented 12 eggs created by The Mustard Seed "Seedsters" to First Lady Elee Reeves. The Board worked with The Mustard Seed, a Christian community for adults with developmental disabilities, to craft the eggs.

Twelve Mustard Seed community members were given the opportunity to decorate an egg that represents 12 museums throughout our great state. The museums and artists included were Vicksburg Military Park, artist Russell Cobb; the B. B. King Museum, artist Steven Bryant; the Mississippi Museum of Natural Science, artist Taylor Moore; the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Museum, artist Allie Ruffin; the Mississippi Museum of Art, artist Heather Frazier; the Mississippi Arts and Entertainment Experience, artist Lindsay Hamilton; the Mississippi Civil Rights Museum, artist Sarah Simonson; the Delta Blues Museum, artist Will Gibbes; the Mississippi Aquarium, artist Robin Smith; the Ohr-O'Keefe Museum of Art, artist Michele Trebotich; the Grammy Museum, artist Mary Claire Fairbank; and the Jim Henson Museum, artist Gabrielle Chambers.

"The Mustard Seed and the 'Seedsters' have brought so much joy to our family and to many across our state over the years," said First Lady Elee Reeves said. "I have been looking forward to seeing the creativity and the talents of the 'Seedsters' at this year's Easter egg presentation. I'm proud to help promote and honor these Mississippians as they have worked to share the wonder and beauty of our great state."

The 12 artists were invited to the Governor's Mansion to personally present their Easter eggs to the First Lady and to enjoy cookies and juice following the presentation. "It's an honor to present these beautiful eggs to First Lady Reeves," said Ryn Laster, president of the Mississippi Egg Marketing Board, "and to witness the joy and excitement as the 'Seedsters' describe their creations with such enthusiasm is very heartwarming. It means so much to the artists to gift these 'eggs'ceptional pieces of art."
