Equine-Based Programs Help People Conquer Fear of Horses

By Patti Drapala
MSU Ag Communications

Horses can be intimidating and unpredictable, but Mississippi State University programs that have equine components can help people feel more comfortable with these powerful, large animals.

Animal Health

Some students at the MSU College of Veterinary Medicine do not have any riding or handling experience with horses. Dr. Bob Linford, a veterinary surgeon and professor, uses his experience as a teacher and horse enthusiast to help them gain confidence.

Students learn applied anatomy as they participate in equine medicine and surgery courses during the second year of veterinary school. They must use their hands to feel a horse's bones, joints, tendons, connective tissues, and muscles.

During the examination, some students feel quite vulnerable kneeling under a full-grown animal that can weigh from 900 pounds to more than 1,200 pounds. Linford and other medical staff do their best to demonstrate safe handling and hands-on examination techniques that can put both humans and horses at ease.

"I have seen fear evaporate in many veterinary medical students once they learn how to approach horses and begin to work with them," Linford said. "Some of these same students become so comfortable with horses that they later decide to specialize in equine medicine."

Linford's responsibilities include teaching courses on equine medicine and surgery. The process of teaching veterinary medical students to treat, save, and rehabilitate equine patients is more gratifying for the professor when they share his enthusiasm.

"If physical problems are uncorrected in horses, they often lose their lives," Linford said. And when horses have medical problems, they do not adjust well to hospitalization and being isolated from other horses. Their social nature is what makes it difficult, but rewarding, to treat them and educate students to be comfortable around them."

Youth Development

The social nature of horses and their physical beauty draw many youth to join 4-H so they can participate in the organization's horse project. Many of these youth and their parents lack experience with horses, which can lead to misunderstanding, disappointment, and sometimes injury.

Parents and 4-H members who participate in the horse project learn to proceed slowly in getting close to horses. The program recommends "baby steps" in learning how to approach, train, and care for a horse. Youth enlarge their comfort zone by allowing the horse to sniff them, offering a treat, and rubbing its neck or mane.

"You just don't buy a horse and plop a child onto its back," said Clay County director Donna Cliett of the MSU Extension Service. "People need to understand the nature of horses and the ability of horses to sense unease being projected by humans or other animals that come in contact with them."

As a 4-H leader, Cliett said she has seen apprehension in some young riders who sign up for the horse project. As youth become used to their horses, they conquer that fear.

"Some children go from being terrified of horses to getting on their horse and becoming a speed demon at barrel and pole racing," Cliett said.

An avid horse enthusiast since her childhood, Cliett also has seen how distress, such as illness or injury, can quickly change a horse's disposition.

"In this situation, they can hurt people if not handled properly," Cliett said. "Because veterinary medical students receive proper training, they know how to be safe and protect the patient from harm."

Therapeutic Riding

Proper handling of horses is just as important when humans have been hurt or suffer from physical or emotional disabilities.

Extension youth development specialist Mary Riley directs the 4-H Therapeutic Riding Program offered to children with special physical or emotional needs. These children become Therapeutic Equestrian Activity Members, or TEAM riders, in the program.

Riley's approach to horsemanship mirrors that of the 4-H horse project and veterinary medical student training.

"Depending on the child's size, we accompany or carry them to their horse or carry them and let them touch the horse on its shoulder, neck, and head," Riley said. "I encourage the child to stroke the horse's muzzle and feel its whiskers and warm breath."

The therapeutic riding program began in 2000, and Riley said no child has refused to participate after experiencing this approach. Of course the horses selected for the program are patient and get along with people.

"Horses are inherently intuitive, sensitive, and alert to their surroundings," Riley said. "They also are herd animals that respond to leadership, and for this reason, they can be wonderful teachers."

Intercollegiate Sports

Many 4-H youth and special needs children who ride horses are beginners who evolve into riders with command of their horses. Some competitors on MSU's Equestrian Team start out that way, too.

"Some team members have never ridden horses, but intercollegiate equestrian competition includes all levels of expertise, from beginner to expert rider," said MSU equestrian team coach Molly Nicodemus.

The experienced team members work with beginners to help them feel comfortable being around a horse, and then riding and directing it to perform in the show ring. These riders do not train or compete with the same horse, so they must learn to adapt quickly to unfamiliar horses.

"It's rewarding to see beginning riders do well," said Nicodemus, an assistant professor of animal and dairy sciences. "An equestrian team has to have strong riders in each division of competition for the team to do well, so these beginners are just as valuable as the ones with experience."

Convenient & Comforting Casseroles...

CHEESE GRITS CASSEROLE

1 teaspoon salt
1 14.5-ounce can chicken broth
1 cup uncooked stone-ground grits
12 ounces sharp cheddar cheese – grated
1/2 cup butter
3 eggs – beaten
1 cup half & half
1 bunch green onions – chopped
1 teaspoon garlic – minced
1 tablespoon basil – minced
Hot sauce to taste
Salt to taste
Pepper to taste

Preheat oven to 350°. Add grits and salt to boiling chicken broth; reduce heat to low and cook grits until done. Stir in cheese until melted and add hot sauce and pepper; add butter and stir until melted. Add half & half to beaten eggs; stir into grits. Fold in green onions, garlic, and basil. Pour mixture into a 13 x 9 casserole dish and bake one hour.

DELTA'S BEST RICE CASSEROLE

1 stick butter
1 bunch green onions – including tops – chopped
2 cans mushroom soup
1 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms
10 ounces grated sharp cheese
4 cups cooked rice
1/2 cup sliced almonds
1 small jar chopped pimientos

Melt butter in sauce pan; add onions and sauté until tender. Add mushroom soup, the juice from the sliced mushrooms, and pimientos. Combine with cooked rice. Pour mixture into a 9 x 13 casserole dish. Top with sliced mushrooms, cheese, and sliced almonds. Bake at 350° for 30 minutes or until bubbly.

SPINACH & ARTICHOKE CASSEROLE

1 stick butter or margarine
1/2 cup onion – finely chopped
2 10-ounce packages frozen chopped spinach – cooked & drained
1 large can artichoke hearts – packed in water – not oil
1 pint sour cream
3/4 - 1 cup Parmesan cheese
Salt to taste
Pepper to taste

Over medium heat sauté onion in butter until tender. Cook spinach until just heated through and drain off all excess liquid; set aside. Drain liquid from artichokes and cut into quarters. Combine sour cream with onion and butter mixture, artichokes, and spinach. Add half of the Parmesan cheese; salt and pepper to taste. Gently stir mixture and pour into casserole dish. Sprinkle remaining Parmesan cheese over the top of casserole and bake uncovered in preheated 350° oven for 20 to 30 minutes. Scrumptious!

STUFFED EGGPLANT CASSEROLE WITH SHRIMP

2 or 3 medium sized eggplants
1/2 pound ground beef
1 pound fresh shrimp – peeled & deveined - uncooked
1 yellow onion – not a sweet one
2 stalks celery
1/2 sweet pepper
1 bunch green onions
1 clove garlic
1 half-loaf of day old or stale French bread
2 or 3 tablespoons butter
Italian bread crumbs for thickening & topping
Salt to taste
Pepper to taste

Peel and cut eggplant into large cubes. Place in boiling water until soft; drain in colander, reserving some of the liquid from the eggplant. Into the reserved liquid, add the stale bread until soaked thoroughly. It is important to keep some of the reserved eggplant liquid set aside in case it is needed if the casserole is too dry after all ingredients are mixed together. After bread is soaked and soft, drain in another colander. Chop onion, celery, sweet pepper, green onions, and garlic. Slowly cook and brown ground beef, add seasonings, and sauté together until vegetables are tender. Add butter, uncooked shrimp and stir until shrimp are a little pink. To this mixture, add the drained eggplant and stir. Add the soft stale bread and stir all ingredients together. Salt and pepper to taste. If the mixture is too watery, add Italian bread crumbs to soak up some of the liquid. If the mixture is too dry, add the reserved eggplant liquid until you get the desired consistency. The bread crumbs add flavoring, so feel free to add as much as desired. Place mixture in greased casserole dish, top with the Italian bread crumbs, and bake in a 350° oven for about 30-35 minutes, or until top is browned. Delicious! Enjoy!

REUBEN CASSEROLE

3 potatoes
Corned beef
Sauerkraut
Caraway seeds
Swiss cheese – sliced

Boil potatoes until fork tender. Slice potatoes to cover bottom of dish. Place sliced corned beef on top of potatoes. Spoon sauerkraut on top of beef and sprinkle caraway seeds on the sauerkraut layer. Top casserole with Swiss cheese. Bake in preheated 350° oven until cheese is melted and casserole is heated through.

SALES CLOSING DATES FOR USDA CROP INSURANCE PROGRAMS ARE APPROACHING

USDA's Risk Management Agency Jackson Regional Office, reminds Mississippi producers who wish to purchase Multi-Peril Crop Insurance (MPCI) for the 2010 crop year of the following final Sales closing dates:

- Corn – February 28, 2010
- Soybeans – February 28, 2010
- Rice – February 28, 2010
- Grain Sorghum – February 28, 2010
- Peanuts – February 28, 2010
- Cotton - February 28, 2010

Insured growers may also use this opportunity to make important changes to their coverage. Current policyholders and uninsured growers who wish to purchase a policy must make all decisions on crop insurance coverage by the sales closing date for that crop. Decisions include which crops to insure and the level of coverage to obtain.

Please contact a local crop insurance agent to learn additional program details. If the traditional MPCI program for your crop is not available in your county, please ask your agent whether you would be eligible for coverage under a written agreement. A list of crop insurance agents is available at all USDA Service Centers throughout the Country or on the RMA website: <http://www3.rma.usda.gov/tools/agents>.

ATTENTION

CATTLE PRODUCERS

If the excessive rain and/or hard freezes reduced your rye grass grazing, you may be eligible for the Emergency Livestock Assistance Program. To qualify for grazing losses, cattle must have been removed from pastures affected. Producer must also have purchased NAP coverage on any hay crop produced in 2009.

Any losses incurred before January 1, 2010 must be reported to your local Farm Service Agency office by January 30, 2010. Losses incurred after January 1, 2010 must be reported within 30 days of the apparent loss.

If a producer signs up and is approved for ELAP, they must purchase crop insurance on all insurable crops planted on their entire operation and NAP coverage on all non-insurable crops on their entire operation.

Stolen Equipment Leads To Drugs and Cash

By Robert Jordan, Director
Mississippi Agricultural and Livestock Theft Bureau

During the month of December 2009, Sheriff's Departments in Alcorn, Benton, Lafayette, Pontotoc, Prentiss, Tippah, and Union counties began a joint investigation into the theft of equipment, which had been occurring in prior months. Investigators Jimmy Busby, Mike McGowan, Keith Settlemires, and Sonny Vincent with the Mississippi Agricultural and Livestock Theft Bureau assisted in the investigation. Various types of equipment including tractors, trailers, and all-terrain vehicles were targeted by the thieves.

A break in the case came when deputies pursued and stopped a vehicle pulling a trailer with four stolen all-terrain vehicles. Information from that arrest revealed most of the equipment had been transported to Jasper, Newton, and Scott counties and sold for cash or traded for drugs.

Based on the information developed, search warrants were executed. Authorities in Jasper, Newton, and Scott counties, in cooperation with agencies in North Mississippi, recovered stolen equipment valued at nearly $250,000, 100 pounds of marijuana, a large quantity of cocaine, and over $200,000 in cash.

Currently, there are five suspects in custody in Lafayette County and one jailed in Union County. Several suspects face up to twenty counts of grand larceny while others are looking at five to six counts.

The investigation revealed that the property to be stolen was located during daylight hours and usually three suspects would return after midnight with one acting as a look out while the other two would steal the property.

In East Central Mississippi, three suspects were arrested in Jasper County and one in Newton County. They face charges ranging from receiving stolen property to drug possession. Stolen equipment is still being located and much has been returned to the owners or insurance companies.

Property owners are encouraged to keep vulnerable equipment out-of-sight as much as possible and remove ignition keys. Maintain a list of all equipment with the serial and model numbers. These numbers are vitally important in the recovery of the property in the event it is stolen.

The investigation is continuing as authorities locate and recover additional stolen property. To report stolen equipment from an agricultural setting, call the Mississippi Agricultural and Livestock Theft Bureau at 800-678-2660.

Picture above is additional equipment that was recovered in the investigation.

First Mississippian Crowned Miss Rodeo America

By Miss Rodeo American, Inc.

The results are in and the next Miss Rodeo America has been crowned. The 2010 leading lady of professional rodeo is Kelli Jackson of Eupora, Mississippi. Jackson is the first Miss Rodeo Mississippi to achieve the title of Miss Rodeo America. During the next year, she will travel more than 100,000 miles representing Miss Rodeo America, Inc. and the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

"I am an enthusiastic rodeo fan and spirited competitor; the sport of rodeo encompasses not only my dreams, but also my passion. As Miss Rodeo America, I will offer a welcoming glimpse of the western lifestyle and the sport of rodeo to our nation," Jackson said.

Miss Rodeo America 2009, Maegan Ridley, of Alta Loma, California fulfilled her duties at the 51st anniversary of the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo. Jackson was introduced as the 2010 Miss Rodeo America at the 4th performance of the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo, on Sunday, December 6, 2009. She began making appearances at rodeos across the country in January.

In a press conference following her coronation, Kelli thanked her family for encouraging her to dare to dream and believing in her.

"My family provided a strong foundation and it's all of you that have taught me to fly," Kelli said in reference to her supporters.

Aside from her rodeo interests, Jackson has a Bachelor of Arts degree in History and Political Science from Wheaton College. Her goal is to obtain a Master's Degree in Public Policy with an Agricultural Development Focus from Duke University. Jackson will be able to put to good use the $10,000 educational scholarship she will receive at the completion of her reign.

Jackson was also awarded a wardrobe of Wrangler Jeans, Justin Boots, Bailey Hats, fully tooled Court's Saddle with custom Miss Rodeo America conchos, and an official Miss Rodeo America trophy buckle from Montana Silversmiths. Accompanying the perpetual Miss Rodeo America tiara made by Landstrom's Original Black Hills Gold Creations, she was given a wardrobe of matching jewelry. These items, along with a multitude of other valuable and exquisite prizes, will be presented to her throughout the year.

Contestants were judged in the major categories of horsemanship, personality, and appearance, while competing in the areas of public speaking, personal interviews, modeling, photogenic, and rodeo/equine knowledge. Contestants were eligible for nearly $40,000 in scholarships at the 2010 Miss Rodeo America Pageant. In addition to the $10,000 Miss Rodeo America scholarship, Jackson also received an additional $3,500 in scholarships for winning the speech award, personality category, and appearance category.

Jackson is looking forward to seeing all aspects of rodeo while traveling across the country as Miss Rodeo America 2010. "I'm looking forward to promoting professional rodeo and the Miss Rodeo America organization in its entirety from coast to coast," she said.
