

Making Pasture Weed Control Decisions

By Dr. Rocky Lemus & Jason Weirich
MSU Extension Forage Specialist

As we approach spring growth, weed control becomes an important part of the early preparation to having a healthy, weed-free pasture. Although there are several methods of controlling weeds in pastures, the best control starts with selecting forage species adapted to the physical characteristics of the landscape and managing the forages, so they stay vigorous and able to out-compete the weeds.

General Pasture Management for Weed Control

Pasture management problems usually consist of over or under-grazing. Over-grazing usually causes forage to have a slow recovery period, and weeds with good root reserves grow faster, and which increases their chances for colonization. Most of the effect of overgrazing happens in the mid-summer when pastures have been grazed several times and forage root reserves are low. Growth is further slowed by hot, dry weather. This type of situation allows for perennial weeds with good root reserves to grow faster.

On the other hand, under-grazing allows forage to become very mature and that produces seed heads. As the forage flowers and set a seed head, the growth of the plants slow down significantly, allowing weeds with good reserves to outgrow the forage and produce viable seeds.

Identifying Weed Populations

It is important to begin by scouting pastures to identify all pre-existing problems and to determine the state of the desirable plants and the extent of the weed problem. Identify the weeds present in the pasture and know their growth habit. Understanding the way a plant grows allows controlling its growth and spread.

Three types of weeds can be found in a pasture: annual, biennial, and perennial weeds. Annual weeds germinated from seed grow quickly in the spring, flower, and set seed during one growing season. Cool-season weeds sprout any time from fall through spring, and they will flower in late spring/early summer. Warm-season weeds tend to start growing in the spring and hang around throughout the whole growing season.

Biennial and perennial weeds cause the major headaches in pastures. They usually grow when the pasture is dormant or not very competitive. They usually become a major problem after the first year when they have developed a good root system and have accumulated a good nutrient reserve to survive (e.g. thistles and dandelions). Biennial weeds will normally reproduce by means of seed, but unlike annuals, they rarely flower and set seed in their first year.

Perennial weeds are the most difficult to control or destroy. Most perennial weeds reproduce both by seeds and by the spread of energy-storing vegetative parts, such as roots or tubers. If the entire root system of a perennial weed is not killed, new plants could reproduce from every root piece left behind.

Weed Control Methods for Pasture Management

An effective weed control plan for pasture involves several management practices. There are several methods of weed control that include chemical, mechanical, burning, and biological control. In pasture and forage crops, chemical control (herbicides) and mechanical control (mowing) are the most common approaches.

Chemical control involves selecting herbicides that will target one or several weed species depending on the mode of action. Herbicides control many annual, biennial, or perennial broadleaved weeds and woody plants in grass pastures. They are more effective than mowing to control perennial weeds.

Remember, once the weed has begun to flower, herbicide applications are much less effective. The best time to use herbicides for weed control in an established pasture is during fall, early winter, or early spring when weeds are actively growing.

Mowing or clipping temporarily removes weed top growth, but it also removes top growth from grass. This system stops seed production but has different effects on the weeds. Using mowing as a control will depend on the cutting frequency and the height at which the weeds are cut. Some producers tend to mow when seed heads are present. This approach is not recommended because it increases the areas for seed dispersion making the area for weed control much larger.

As a rule of thumb, a pound of grass replaces every pound of weed controlled with herbicides. If grass is the corner post of animal nutrition in a livestock operation, then weed control on pastures can make a major contribution to animal performance. Controlling weeds increase forage production, which means more energy and protein for grazing livestock.

Licensed Landscape and Weed Control Companies Offer Clear Advantages to Homeowners

By Stacey Swain
Communication and Policy Advisor
MDAC Bureau of Plant Industry

Spring is the time of year when warm and pleasant weather draws Mississippi homeowners outdoors to get lawn and garden projects underway. Maintaining a healthy, eye-catching landscape is an important yet costly part of owning a home. Whether installing plants or removing unwanted weeds, homeowners should protect their investment by hiring only reputable, licensed landscape and weed control professionals.

Licensed professionals offer significant advantages to consumers. A licensed landscape gardener has the proven expertise to conduct quality work such as placement and selection of trees, shrubs, and flowers to enhance the visual appeal and increase the market value of a property. When weeds invade a lawn, the results can be unsightly and detrimental to other plant life. Consumers can safely eliminate these destructive weeds and protect the public and the environment by hiring a licensed weed control service.

In Mississippi, any person that advertises or solicits business to receive fees or contracts for landscaping or weed control must be licensed by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce through the Bureau of Plant Industry. To receive a license, an applicant must meet education and work experience requirements and make a passing grade on examinations, which tests his or her knowledge in landscape and weed control practices. To protect themselves and their property, consumers should always ask to see proof that the company they hire is licensed.

Start spring lawn and garden projects off the right way by hiring the right professional for the job. For more information, contact the Bureau of Plant Industry at (662) 325-3390, or visit www.mdac.state.ms.us.

From Our Kitchen To Yours!

A Springtime Luncheon...

APPLE SALAD

- 1 large can crushed pineapple
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 1 3-ounce package lemon Jell-O
- 1 3-ounce package cream cheese
- 1 cup chopped apple
- 1 cup chopped pecans
- 1 cup Cool Whip

In sauce pan, mix together crushed pineapple and sugar over medium heat. Add Jell-O and cream cheese and mix until thoroughly combined. Set aside to cool. Once mixture has cooled completely, stir in apples, pecans, and Cool Whip and mix well. Refrigerate over night before serving.

PRAWN & ARTICHOKE VINAIGRETTE

- 2-3 pounds freshwater prawns – shelled & cooked
- 2 14-ounce cans artichoke hearts – drained
- 1 3.5-ounce jar capers
- 1 tablespoon celery seeds
- 2 bay leaves
- 1 small red onion – thinly sliced & separated into rings
- 2 lemons – sliced
- 24 ounce bottled Italian dressing
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1 tablespoon prepared horseradish

Bring 8 cups water to a boil with 3 tablespoons salt. Add shelled prawns; cover and cook 3-4 minutes. Do not overcook. In a large container, layer prawns, artichokes, capers, celery seeds, bay leaves, onion, and lemon slices. Mix dressing, vinegar, and horseradish and pour over prawn mixture. Seal container and marinate for 12-24 hours in refrigerator. Drain prawn mixture and serve on salad greens garnished with onion rings and lemon slices. Yield: 8-12 servings.

ZUCCHINI SQUASH

- 2 medium onions
- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 1 rib celery – finely chopped
- 2 zucchini – cut into 1/4" thick rounds
- 1 large fresh tomato – peeled & cut into 1/2" cubes
- 1 clove garlic – finely minced
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper

Cut onions into thin slices and sauté in olive oil for about 5 minutes. Add celery, zucchini, tomato, garlic, salt, and pepper; stir to combine. Cook 20 minutes or until mixture is heated through and vegetables are tender.

CHEESE BREAD

- 2 cups grated mozzarella cheese
- 1 small can chopped black olives
- Bunch chopped green onion – use whole onion
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise – not a salad dressing or sandwich spread
- 1 stick margarine – melted
- Large loaf French bread – thickly sliced

Mix together cheese, olives, green onion, mayonnaise, and margarine. Spread over bread and bake in preheated 350° oven for approximately 30 minutes or until browned.

NO-COOK BLUEBERRY PIE

- 1 can sweetened condensed milk
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 8 ounces Cool Whip
- 1 cup blueberries
- 1 graham cracker crust pie shell

In large bowl, combine milk, lemon juice, and Cool Whip; fold in blueberries. Pour mixture into pie crust and refrigerate several hours before serving.

Beekeeping Workshops

The Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce, in association with Mississippi State University, Mississippi Beekeepers Association and Central Mississippi Beekeepers Association announces the 2010 schedule for beekeeping workshops as follows:

April 6: One day course for beginner beekeepers at the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Museum in Jackson.

May 7-8: Two day course for all beekeepers at the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station in Verona.

May 14-15: Two day course sponsored by the Central Mississippi Beekeepers Association at the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Museum in Jackson.

June 2-3: Two day course in Hattiesburg at the Mississippi State University Extension Building.

The cost will be $10 per day per participant for workshops in Jackson and $10 total for each for the other two day workshops. Mornings will be spent in the classroom where instructors will teach the basic art of beekeeping. Afternoon sessions will be hands-on and up-close experience working in actual beehives.

Agenda topics include: (1) How to begin, (2) Equipment needed, (3) Basic bee biology, (4) Swarm control and other management practices, (5) How to capture and/or start new colonies, (6) How to raise queen bees, (7) Parasite and disease control and other practical aspects of beekeeping.

A team of instructors has been assembled, including Dr. Clarence Collison, Head of the Entomology and Plant Pathology Department at Mississippi State University, Jon Zawislak, apiculturist with the University of Arkansas, both Harry Fulton and Charles Wilson with the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and other experienced beekeepers.

For more information and/or a copy of the agenda and a registration forms contact Stan Yeagley at 601-924-2582, email candsyeagley@att.net for the May 14-15 workshop or Harry Fulton at 662-325-7765, email harry@mdac.state.ms.us concerning all the other workshops.

ADVERTISING GUIDELINES

The Mississippi Market Bulletin is published on the 1st and 15th of each month by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce. The Mississippi Market Bulletin is an important way for the Department to disseminate news and information about issues affecting Mississippi's agriculture industry and the Department's operations.

Through its classified advertising section, the Bulletin provides a forum for Mississippi residents to buy and sell agricultural related items while also giving statewide exposure to small farmers who might not normally have the economic resources for such widespread advertising. The Bulletin does not publish commercial or display ads and all items offered for sale must have been produced, raised, grown or operated on the seller's property. Businesses, corporations, dealerships, brokers or other commercial enterprises are not allowed to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin.

Advertising rules and guidelines have been established for the Mississippi Market Bulletin in order to comply with regulations enforced by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce and to maintain the objectives of the publication. The staff of the Mississippi Market Bulletin reserves the right to edit, revise or reject any advertisement.

The Mississippi Market Bulletin assumes no responsibility for any notice appearing in the Bulletin nor for any transaction resulting from published notices. Advertisers are cautioned that it is against the law to misrepresent any product offered for sale in public notices or advertisements carried in any publication that is delivered by the United States Postal Service.

- In order to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin you must be a subscriber. To place an ad, you must include your name, mailing address and account number that the subscription is listed under on each ad that you submit (this information will not be printed). Each subscriber is allowed to advertise two ads in the Bulletin, listing one ad per category.
- All listings must be agriculture related (raised, grown, produced or operated on your farm). At the top of your ad, write the category that the ad should be listed under. We reserve the right to edit, revise or reject each ad. Please print or type your ad.
- There is a 30-word limit for classified advertisements, this includes: price (on the item you are selling), your city, county and telephone number or name and complete address must be included in the ad if you do not list a telephone number.
- You must include a price on items being offered for sale. We cannot run for sale advertisements without a price.
- Ads cannot be held over from one issue to another. You must submit them for each issue. Advertising deadlines are posted in each issue of the Bulletin for your convenience.
- Out-of-state residents are not eligible to advertise with the following exceptions: Out-of-state ads are allowed in the "Wanting To Buy" category. Out-of-state ads are allowed for individuals owning farm property within the state that is being offered for sale (consisting of 10 acres or more).

Dealing With Hogs Secures College Tuition For 4-H'er

By Patti Drapala
MSU Ag Communications

Making a big deal of showing hogs has secured a college education for Lee County 4-H'er Taylor Scott.

When Taylor, 17, was just a toddler, she often accompanied her grandfather, Terry Patterson, on the daily rounds on his farm near Nettleton. Her favorite place was the hog barn, where she enjoyed observing the behavior of these intelligent, social animals.

"I loved being around animals and taking care of them, so it was natural for me to gravitate to the pigs because of my Papa Terry," Taylor said. "Everything I know about them is because of him."

Patterson was not surprised when his granddaughter expressed an interest in showing pigs. When Taylor turned 8, she joined 4-H so she could participate in the program's swine project. Her parents, Kerry and Carrie Scott of Nettleton, thought this would be a good way for their daughter to learn responsibility for taking care of live animals and to direct her energy toward accomplishing goals.

Patterson, who currently is president of the Mississippi Pork Producers Association, saw another advantage that 4-H could offer his granddaughter.

"Taylor and I were riding home in my old pickup after a county hog show and she was counting the cash she had won," Patterson said. "She told me she wanted to go to college, but she wanted to pay her own way instead of her mama and daddy having to do it, so I made a deal with her."

He told Taylor he would help with the pigs. She promised to put all prize money into a college savings account. Taylor kept her word and has won more than $12,000 in prize money at the Mississippi State Fair and the Dixie National Junior Roundup. At the 2009 state fair, Taylor won Grand Champion Hog with her pig.

"Hogs are interesting animals, but they are not easy to manage," Taylor said. "The most challenging thing is getting them to do what you want, not what they want. Once you train them, they will do what you want them to do."

Taylor has deposited her winnings in the Mississippi Prepaid Affordable College Tuition, or MPACT, plan offered through College Savings Mississippi. She will enter Itawamba Community College in Fulton this fall as a freshman.

"We have paid for two years of junior college and two years of senior college, so her future is set," said Carrie Scott. "Taylor has been able to accomplish this goal despite competing only twice a year. Any money she earns from here forward will be used to pay other college expenses, such as books, dormitory fees, and supplies."

Taylor's unwavering enthusiasm for 4-H and affection for her pigs have allowed her to be successful in the show ring and outside of it.

"Taylor does a great job and wants to do everything right," said Lee County agricultural agent Belvia Giachelli of the Mississippi State University Extension Service. "She wins many of her classes in county competitions, usually wins the district shows, and is almost always in the Top 5 in the showmanship class at the state level."

Even though Taylor's primary focus has been the 4-H swine project, she also has excelled in the classroom and participated in many school activities and student groups. A senior at Nettleton High School,

Taylor is a starting guard on the women's basketball team. She also is on the tennis team and is a cheerleader for all sports. Additionally, the youth group at her church keeps her involved with various community service projects.

"It's very hard to balance all these things," Taylor said. "I love pigs, I love basketball, and I love my life. I just have to make time for all of it."

The hogs are still No. 1 in her heart, and she enjoys spending time with them.

"You can only feed them certain things at certain times, and you have to cut their hair and constantly teach them," Taylor said. "Pigs are very smart, and I like to get out there in the pen and just have fun with them and see what they can teach me."

Taylor will have one year of eligibility left with 4-H when she begins her freshman year at ICC. She plans to compete one last time at the State Fair and Dixie National. When she accomplishes that goal, Taylor will turn her attention toward completing her college education to become a physical therapist.

"My experiences in 4-H have taught me to work hard to achieve greatness," Taylor said. "I would definitely encourage young children to join 4-H because they will learn to develop their leadership skills and earn a way to a great education as well."

Understanding Importance of Fertilizer Numbers

By Harry Ballard, Branch Director
Feed, Fertilizer, Lime, Soil & Plant
Amendments Program

Choosing a fertilizer for gardens, lawns, trees, or shrubs can be an overwhelming task. To choose the best fertilizer for the job, you must first decide what grade or analysis is needed. The grade consists of three numbers found on the front of a fertilizer box or bag. These three numbers represent the percentages of three primary plant nutrients, which are nitrogen (N), phosphorus (P), and potassium (K).

The first number in the grade represents the percentage of nitrogen in the fertilizer. Nitrogen is very important to plants because it provides plants with lush, green foliage and gives them the ability to produce more chlorophyll, which increases plant growth. Homeowners can achieve a dark green lawn by using fertilizers with high nitrogen content, but they will also have to mow frequently.

The second number in the grade represents the phosphorous content, which promotes root development and growth and increases flowering and bloom size. Most fertilizer companies market phosphorous as a "bloom booster" product. High phosphorus fertilizer should be used when plants are being established in a garden or when planting a new lawn, shrub, or tree.

The final number in a fertilizer grade is potassium, which helps the plant guard against disease and insect damage. This nutrient also aids in drought protection, cold tolerance, and photosynthesis. Potassium is sometimes called the antifreeze for plants and is applied at the beginning of winter for cold protection.

Understanding these three primary plant nutrients should make purchasing fertilizer easier. However, the best way to determine how much fertilizer a crop needs is to have a soil test performed. Soil tests are performed through the Mississippi State University Extension Service. The results will provide the appropriate amounts of each nutrient needed for optimum plant growth and indicate if lime is needed to adjust the pH of the soil.

The next time you buy fertilizer, consider what your plants need and match the needs to the numbers.

Contact Harry Ballard at (662) 325-6629 for additional information regarding plant nutrients and fertilizer.

Beef and Poultry Expo Planned For April 8

By Linda Breazeale
MSU Ag Communications

Poultry and cattle farmers will gain the latest production recommendations from state and national experts during educational seminars and a trade show set for April 8 in South Mississippi.

The Magnolia Beef and Poultry Expo will take place at the Smith County Agricultural Complex on Highway 35 South in Raleigh.

The program and trade show open at 9 a.m. Educational and commercial booths will range from agricultural equipment to medications for cattle and poultry. Topics on the program include feeder calves, beef and poultry market outlooks, estate planning, and poultry house ventilation. Door prizes will be given away during the educational seminars.

The free event is open to the public and sponsored by the Mississippi State University Extension Service and the Community Bank of Raleigh.

For more information, contact local Extension Service offices in Jasper, Rankin, Newton, Simpson, Smith, or Scott counties.

On February 18, 2010, Howard Ballou from WLBT Channel 3, was one of the guest speakers who spoke to over 500 children at the Ag and Forestry Museum to help celebrate February's Black History Month. Pictured is Elizabeth Johnson from the Ag and Forestry Museum and Howard Ballou from WLBT Channel 3.
