Pork Checkoff's PQA Plus® Program hits 50,000 Milestone

By Cindy Cunningham
National Pork Board

Pork Quality Assurance Plus® (PQA Plus), the pork industry's program to assure the world that U.S. producers are delivering a safe and wholesome product and that they are caring for their animals in a socially responsible manner, reached a significant milestone this week when the number of producers achieving PQA Plus certification reached 50,000.

"All pork producers should be especially proud about reaching this milestone," said Gene Nemecek, a swine veterinarian from Springdale, Arkansas, and the president of the National Pork Board. "Producing safe food and providing high-quality care for our animals are two of the ethical principles that form the foundation of the pork industry's "We Care" initiative. But it's one thing to talk about ethical principles and another when we walk the talk," Nemecek said. "This demonstrates that producers are walking the talk."

Since its introduction in 1989, PQA has been the pork industry's flagship educational and continuous improvement program. Created through the Pork Checkoff to promote food safety and residue avoidance on the farm, the program was expanded in 2007 to include animal handling practices and renamed PQA Plus. To attain certification a producer must meet with a trained advisor once every three years to review the 10 Good Production Practices that promote pork safety and animal well-being practices.

Additionally, to achieve site status, a pork operation must have an on-farm assessment of its animal handling practices by a certified PQA

Plus advisor.

"Getting to the 50,000 certification mark has been a significant undertaking by both pork producers and the ag and Extension educators and veterinarians who conduct the certifications," said Stacy Revels, manager of certification programs for the Pork Checkoff. "The National Pork Board in 2009 set a goal of having all pork producers certified by 2010. And while we're not quite there yet, this milestone demonstrates the commitment of pork producers to doing the right thing."

"When you consider that prior to 2007 the industry had 30,000 producers certified, you begin to appreciate the success of PQA Plus," Nemecek said. "Now, every time we certify a new producer we set a new record."

"What is really important, though," Nemecek said, "is that our customers can have confidence in the safety of pork and in the animal handling practices that producers employ as they care for their animals."

Revels noted that the Board also has set a goal of having all operations site-assessed by the end of 2010. "Right now, we have assessed operations that represent more than 60 percent of all the pigs in the country. We continue to assess new operations each week and are making great progress on our goal," she said.

Pork producers, who have yet to become certified or site-assessed, can obtain information about the PQA Plus program by calling the Pork Checkoff Service Center, 800-456-7675.

Pork Promotes a Lifetime of Healthy Eating

By National Pork Board

Parents' healthy habits can get their child on the path to a lifetime of good eating, and the Pork Checkoff is showing how lean protein and pork can play a key role, from breakfast to dinner.

"It's important for the children to see their parents participating in healthy habits so they will follow suit," says Adria Sheil-Brown, a registered dietitian and manager of nutrition communications and research for the Pork Checkoff. "It's also important for parents to get the kids involved with cooking and educate them about basic nutrition along the way."

"That's why the latest "Healthy Headlines" e-newsletter distributed by the Pork Checkoff is packed with practical, science-based nutrition tips that are geared not only towards parents but dietitians and other health professionals," Sheil-Brown explains.

"It's part of our responsibility to provide accurate information because pork has a good story to tell. This awareness can arm health professionals with the knowledge they need to accurately educate clients and put these people and their families on the path to a healthier lifestyle."

"Healthy Headlines" offers pork's unique twist on some time-honored principles of healthy eating, such as:

- Always eat breakfast—and serve some lean Canadian bacon. "With obesity rates on the rise, particularly childhood obesity, a healthy breakfast prevents overeating throughout the day," says Sheil-Brown, who notes that lean pork can help with weight control. A study published in the British Journal of Nutrition found that when people ate high-quality protein foods for breakfast, including lean Canadian bacon, they had a greater sense of sustained fullness throughout the day.

To encourage consumers to add lean pork at breakfast, "Healthy Headlines" includes a link to the recipe "Baked Egg with Canadian Bacon, Tomato, and Potatoes" at the Pork Checkoff's PorkandHealth.org site.

- Eat more fruits and vegetables, and add lean protein. According to the National Cancer Institute, on an estimated daily basis, 25% of school-age children do not eat a single serving of vegetables, and 50% of children under age 18 eat less than one serving of fruit. From Smoky Citrus Kabobs to Peachtree Pork Salad, "Healthy Headlines" offers a bumper crop of recipe ideas that pair lean pork with fruits and veggies. Pork and produce can also provide healthy after-school snacks like Peachy Ham Kabobs, which kids can make with no cooking involved.

"Pork is spreading the message that hands-on learning is a great way for kids to experience healthy eating and discover that good nutrition can taste great, too," Sheil-Brown says.

1 cup pomegranate seeds, OR dried cranberries
1 7-ounce package glazed walnuts, OR 1 1/2 cups toasted walnut pieces
1/2 small red onion, thinly sliced, halved & separated into pieces
2/3 - 3/4 cup bottled champagne vinaigrette, OR balsamic vinaigrette
1/3 cup goat cheese, crumbled

Combine salad greens, apples, pomegranate seeds, walnuts, and onion in very large salad bowl. Pour vinaigrette over mixture; gently toss until lightly coated. BOTTOM-OF-THE-BOX CRUSHED CRACKER PORK

1 pound pork tenderloin
1 egg, beaten
1 tablespoon steak sauce
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1 cup cheese crackers, finely crushed
2 tablespoons vegetable oil, divided

Combine egg, steak sauce, and garlic powder in a shallow dish. Place crushed crackers in another shallow dish. Cut tenderloin crosswise into 1/2 -inch thick slices. Pound or flatten slices with the heel of your hand to 1/4 -inch thickness. Dip each slice first into egg mixture, then cracker crumbs, turning to coat. Heat one tablespoon of oil in a large nonstick skillet over medium heat until hot. Add half of pork slices and cook 4 to 5 minutes per side or until browned. Repeat with remaining oil and pork slices. Serves 4.

GRILLED NEW POTATO SALAD WITH BACON & SCALLIONS

6 slices bacon, thick-cut, cooked until crisp & coarsely crumbled
2 pounds red new potatoes, (golf ball size) scrubbed & pierced with a fork
2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
4 green onions, including green tops, cut crosswise into thin rounds

Dressing:
1/4 cup extra-virgin olive oil
1 tablespoon apple cider vinegar
1 large clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons fresh parsley, minced
1 teaspoon kosher salt
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

Prepare a medium fire in a charcoal grill or preheat a gas grill to medium. In a medium-sized bowl, toss potatoes with olive oil until well coated. Arrange potatoes around cool outer edges of grill or place on upper rack if grill is so equipped. Cover and grill potatoes until tender when pierced with a knife, about 20 minutes. While potatoes are grilling, put bacon and onion in a large bowl. In a separate bowl, combine dressing ingredients; set aside. Transfer tender potatoes to a cutting board to cool for 5 minutes. Cut potatoes in half and add to bacon and onions in the bowl. Stir dressing to combine and pour over potatoes. Gently toss to thoroughly combine. Serve immediately. The potato salad can be made up to 2 hours prior to serving. Cover and set aside at room temperature. Serves 6.

1 roma tomato, seeded & chopped
2 ounces blue cheese, crumbled
Leaf lettuce or romaine

Combine mayonnaise and mustard in a medium bowl. Fold in eggs, avocado, tomato, blue cheese, and bacon until combined; set aside. Layer each ham slice with some of the lettuce. Place heaping tablespoon of egg mixture at one end of each slice. Starting at the end with the filling, roll up each ham slice; secure with a wooden pick. Serves 4.

BAKED EGG WITH CANADIAN BACON, TOMATO & POTATOES

1 6-ounce package Canadian style bacon, chopped
Butter-flavored nonstick cooking spray
1 cup refrigerated red potato wedges, no oil added, cubed

2 tablespoons fresh chives, chopped
4 large eggs
1/8 teaspoon black pepper
4 teaspoons nonfat half and half
4 teaspoons Swiss cheese, or Gruyere, or white cheddar, finely shredded

Preheat oven to 350° F. Coat inside of four 6-ounce ramekins or custard cups with cooking spray; set aside. Combine Canadian bacon, potatoes, tomato, and chives in a medium bowl. Spoon mixture evenly in ramekins. In each ramekin, break an egg on top of the Canadian bacon mixture and sprinkle with pepper. Drizzle one teaspoon half and half over each egg. Place ramekins on a baking sheet. Bake in heated oven for 15-20 minutes or until egg whites are opaque and yolks have firm edges but soft in centers. Remove from oven and serve immediately. If desired sprinkle each with one teaspoon cheese. Makes 4 servings.

Outlook Good For State's Peanut Crop

By Patti Drapala
MSU Ag Communications

Demand for Mississippi peanuts could be up because of season-long production problems in Georgia and Alabama.

"Peanut crops in the central areas of Georgia and Alabama are hurting," said Malcolm Broome, executive director of the Mississippi Peanut Growers Association. "If our farmers can get the crop out, they may see some price improvement because of the anticipated decreases in supply."

planting decisions next year.

About 60 percent of the state's peanut crop is grown in southeastern Mississippi. The rest of the acreage is distributed among growing areas in the southwest, the Delta, and the northeast.

Farmers in northeast Mississippi have been hit especially hard by dry weather this year.

"We missed a lot of late-season rain that would have helped our yields," said Charlie Stokes, area agent with the Mississippi State University Extension Service in Aberdeen. "We really needed that sure the digger exerts to grind up the clods can break off the peanuts, keeping them trapped underground.

"I've seen clods as big as a bucket lid," said Hamilton farmer Don Self, who is Mississippi's representative on the National Peanut Board. "I have had to stop digging in a couple of fields, but I'm not ready to throw in the towel yet."

With harvest just beginning, farmers must wait and see what yields and prices will be.

"There is always strong consumer demand for peanuts," said Brian Atkins, facility manager for the Birdsong Peanuts buying point in Aberdeen. "Peanut butter sales are up, and sales for candy and other types of nuts are down. This makes peanuts a viable crop for many of our farmers."

An average peanut yield in Mississippi is around 4,000 pounds per acre. Some farmers who were hard-hit with dry weather have seen yields in the 2,000 pound range, but others have dug as many as 5,500 pounds per acre.

"It's still too early to tell what we'll have," said Poplarville-based Extension agronomist Mike Howell. "Unless we experience some unforeseen weather disaster, we are looking at an average crop for Mississippi, and we could also see better-than-average yields if we get a good rain."

In the meantime, the peanut growers association has been helping farmers promote their product and working with MSU researchers and Extension specialists in establishing producer learning centers in Lucedale and Hamilton.

The centers are running trials to test varieties, fungicides, planting dates, and tillage systems. Representatives from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Peanut Laboratory are assisting educational efforts to improve peanut production in Mississippi.

Hit-and-Miss Engines Featured At Harvest Festival

By Claude Nash, Editor
Mississippi Market Bulletin

Internal combustion engines revolutionized the world around the turn of the 20th century in much the same way that steam engines did a century before.

A hit-and-miss engine is a type of four-stroke internal combustion engine that was conceived in the late 19th century and was produced by various companies from the 1890's through approximately the 1930's.

The name comes from the method of speed control that is implemented on these engines (as opposed to the "throttle governed" method of speed control). The sound made when the engine is running is a distinctive "POP whoosh whoosh whoosh whoosh POP" as the engine fires and then coasts until the speed decreases and needs to fire again to maintain its average speed.

Hit-and-miss engines were made by a multitude of engine manufacturers during their peak usage, which was from approximately 1910 through the early 1930's when they began to be replaced by more modern designs.

These engines were used to power pumps for cultivation, saws for cutting wood, generators for electricity in rural areas, running farm equipment, and many other stationary applications. These engines also ran some of the early washing machines, were used as labor-saving devices on farms, and allowed the farmer to be more efficient in many areas of the farm.

Hit-and-miss engines were made in horsepower from one through approximately 100. These engines are slow speed and typically ran from 250 revolutions per minute (rpm) for large horsepower engines to 600 rpm for small horsepower engines. By the 1930's, more-advanced types of engines were being designed and produced.

If you would like to see several types of these fly-wheel engines, make plans today for the Harvest Festival, November 10-13, 2010, from 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m., at the Mississippi Ag and Forestry Museum in Jackson, where Small Town Mississippi comes to life with a vast array of on-farm demonstrations.

For more information on the Harvest Festival, call 601-432-4500 or to show and display a hit-and-miss engine or antique tractor, contact Fred Temple at 601-896-3901.

Freshly harvested peanuts are unloaded from a peanut combine on a farm in the Lackey community near Aberdeen. (Photo by MSU Ag Communications/Scott Corey)

Peanut prices are between $430 and $450 per ton, and the anticipated yield shortages from the Georgia and Alabama crop could push the price to more than $500 per ton.

Mississippi farmers increased their peanut planting to 25,000 acres this year, a 19 percent increase from 2009. Steady prices for peanuts and weak ones for cotton earlier in the year influenced many farmers to add peanut acreage. Since that time, cotton prices have recovered, and they could play a significant role in rain in late August or early September to help the peanuts fill and mature."

"It's been hot and dry, which makes things really tough for us," said Port Gibson farmer Lonnie Fortner. "I don't know how this year will play out, but I am cautiously optimistic that I will have a good crop of peanuts to sell."

In some areas of the state, clods caused by lack of moisture make harvesting difficult, as the diggers cannot reach the peanuts. The pres-

Since 1980, Everett Spivey was responsible for having these unique and wonderful engines on display at the Mississippi State Fair. During the 2010 Mississippi State Fair (left) Hayward Anderson of Hattiesburg, Mississippi, and (right) Fred Temple with the Mississippi Ag and Forestry Museum, demonstrated Mr. Anderson's IHC (International Harvester Company) famous hopper cooled hit-and-miss engine.

Marlyn Holder of Clinton, Mississippi with his Meadows grist mill, demonstrated how to grind kernels of corn into cornmeal during the 2010 Mississippi State Fair. You can see these hit-and-miss engines and many more at the Mississippi Ag and Forestry Museum during the Harvest Festival.
