Revision of the Clean Water Act and Waters of the U.S.

By Chris McDonald, CWB®
Director of Environmental Affairs
MDAC

Mississippi is blessed to have some of the most abundant natural resources within the U.S. Because of these great resources (i.e., soils and water) and conservation practices implemented by farmers across the state, agriculture is Mississippi's number one industry. It has an annual economic impact of $7.6 billion and employs approximately 29% of the state's workforce either directly or indirectly. To sustain this success, laws and regulations are needed to help conserve natural resources. One such regulation is the Clean Water Act.

The Clean Water Act (CWA) establishes the basic structure for regulating discharges of pollutants into the waters of the U.S. and regulating quality standards for surface waters. Basic principles of the CWA were first enacted across the U.S. in 1948 as the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (FWPCA). In 1972, the FWPCA was significantly reorganized and expanded into what the CWA is today. The CWA set the goal of eliminating pollutant discharges into navigable waters by 1985. The CWA prohibits the discharge of any pollutant into navigable waters from any point source unless a permit is obtained from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). The CWA further defines the term "navigable waters" to mean "waters of the U.S."

In 2015, the EPA and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers finalized a rule that significantly expanded the definition of "waters of the U.S." under the CWA. This rule was adopted without stakeholder input, and resulted in a rule that impeded state authority, adversely impacted state regulatory programs, and undermined states' primacy in land and water decisions. State departments of agriculture were particularly concerned about the preservation of farming exemptions, lack of administrable definitions, scope of the tributary definition, and implementing the significant nexus standard. The rule was challenged in court by dozens of state, municipal, industry and environmental organizations. It was quickly blocked by the federal courts based on its legal flaws and was never implemented nationwide.

Under the direction of President Donald Trump and recently appointed EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt, a rule has been introduced to rescind the 2015 Clean Water Rule and recodify the regulatory text that existed prior to 2015 defining "waters of the U.S." The proposed rule aims to recodify the identical regulatory text that was in place prior to the 2015 Clean Water Rule. Therefore, this action, when final, will not change current practices regarding how to apply the "waters of the U.S." definition. The next step will be a second rulemaking process in which the EPA and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will engage in a substantive re-evaluation of the definition of "waters of the U.S." with stakeholder input.

On October 12, 2017, EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt visited Mississippi and met with Governor Phil Bryant, Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Cindy Hyde-Smith, farmers, and other state leaders to discuss ways to strengthen partnerships with EPA. One major topic of discussion during Administrator Pruitt's visit was "waters of the U.S." Administrator Pruitt ensured that the EPA will look at Mississippi as a partner, not an adversary. Mississippi leaders look forward to working with the EPA and the Army Corps of Engineers through the process of reevaluating and redefining "waters of the U.S." Stakeholders will now have a voice regarding the CWA and "waters of the U.S."

Governor Phil Bryant and Commissioner Cindy Hyde-Smith look forward to working with EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt on "waters of the U.S."

On October 12, 2017, EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt visited Mississippi and met with Governor Phil Bryant, Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Cindy Hyde-Smith, farmers, and other state leaders to discuss ways to strengthen partnerships with EPA.

The state average prices for common forest products are listed. Values given are offered as a guide to help individuals assess the fair market value of their timber. The average price should not be applied as the exact value for a particular tract. Mississippi College Equestrian Team Trots to 11th Season

By Andy Kanengiser
MC University News Coordinator

Mississippi College's (MC) equestrian team gallops into its 11th season as one of the South's premier squads.

Over the years, MC student-athletes like Meredith Guider of Hinds County and Erica Reynolds of Dallas, Texas shined in the region to reach national competitions.

Led by head coach Mandi Powers, 25 MC riders from 10 states are jumping hurdles as the 2017-2018 season begins. The Lady Choctaws should bring home more ribbons in Intercollegiate Horse Show Association division matches this fall and spring.

Riders from schools like Auburn, Alabama and Berry College in Georgia are among MC opponents on the road. Matches take MC to Auburn October 28, and November 11-12 to an IHSA show at Berry College. The MC squad returns to Auburn February 3, and competes in an Alabama event February 10.

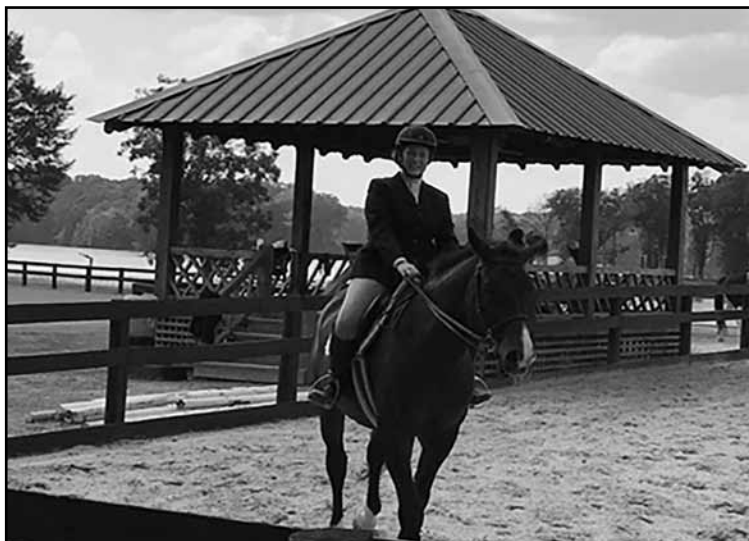

Practices keep the Lady Choctaws and their horses incredibly busy at Providence Hill Farm, a 15-minute drive from the Clinton campus.

Providence Hill Farm owner Jamie Planck Martin is enthused about the team's prospects as the new season gets a jump-start.

"This is the largest and most diverse team that we've ever had," says Martin, a Ridgeland attorney. "We are thrilled to have all of these students from all over the country, many of whom came to Mississippi College for this team."

Beautiful horses with interesting names like Hale Bopp, Laddie, Mac, Quinn and Capiche have been a hallmark of the university's equestrian team for a decade. "Boppie" was among the stars of the family-friendly movie "A Gift Horse" filmed at Providence Hill Farm a couple of years ago.

Mississippi College is building

upon its successes of past seasons with its diverse roster.

Some riders are from metro Jackson communities. Bailey Welch, Jessica Patch, Meredith Henry and Anna Gosa are all Madison residents. McKay Criswell is from Jackson, while Julia Champagne is a Clintonian. Katelyn Stone of Hattiesburg rounds out the seven Mississippians on the roster.

Other student-athletes come from states as far away as Colorado, Michigan and Illinois. MC riders recruited from Florida, Tennessee, Alabama, Texas, Georgia and Louisiana add depth to the team.

Julia Champagne of Clinton began taking riding lessons at the 2,000-acre farm three years ago for an MC physical education class. Coach Powers encouraged her to try out for the team last spring, and she was selected. It's been a fun and fast ride ever since.

"I have really loved getting to ride all the amazing horses we have," Julia said. "It's been so neat to be part of a talented team."

Champagne likes to saddle up a horse named Quintessential during Fall practices. "I have learned so much through this program about discipline and self-confidence. It's been such a growing experience for me."

A 22-year-old English writing major, Julia isn't the only one feeling blessed to be part of the Blue & Gold team

"We have an incredible opportunity to ride at Providence Hill Farm and train on a variety of different horses," says 18-year-old freshman Ellie Kate Tradup. The opportunity for the public relations major to join the equestrian team was a huge selling point for the Dallas, Texas resident to become an MC Choctaw.

Tradup appreciates the lessons she's learning at practices as riders get ready for a series of horse shows. "Coach Powers is incredibly gifted when it comes to reading, not only the riders, but the horses, too," Ellie says. "She turns it into effective training."

Mississippi College Vice President for Enrollment Services and Dean of Students Jim Turcotte oversees the equestrian, archery, bass fishing and clay shooting teams. He can be reached at 601-925-3315 or turcotte@mc.edu for details on outdoors programs at the Baptist-affiliated university in Clinton.

Providence Hill Farm is a 1,250-acre retreat set on beautiful rolling hills in central Mississippi. The facility is designed to produce excellence from all of our horses and riders, young and old, experience and learning.

MDAC & MDE Celebrate Farm to School Week with USDA at Highland Bluff Elementary School

By Alex Jacks
Communications &
Marketing Specialist — MDAC

The Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce (MDAC) and the Mississippi Department of Education (MDE) recently celebrated the sixth annual Mississippi Farm to School Week with Highland Bluff Elementary School in Brandon. Special guests had the privilege of dining with students in the Bluff Bistro, their school cafeteria. The guests included Mississippi Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Cindy Hyde-Smith, Mississippi House of Representatives Education Chairman John Moore, Mississippi House of Representatives Agriculture Chairman Bill Pigott, Mississippi Senator Josh Harkins, MDE Director of Child Nutrition and Healthy Schools Scott Clements, United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) Office of Community Food Systems National Director Erin Healy, and the Mississippi farmers responsible for growing some of the lunch menu items.

Farmers, including Louis Guedon, of Churchill, Glyn Holmes, of Durant, Gil Thompson, of Mound Bayou, and Becky Beard, who represented the Mississippi Poultry Association, visited third-grade classrooms during the celebration to explain the importance of agriculture and eating healthy fruits and vegetables.

"Educating our children extends beyond what our teachers do in the classroom each day," Rankin County School District Superintendent Dr. Sue Townsend said. "I believe that the Farm to School event provides a wonderful collaborative effort which includes beneficial hands on and real life experiences for our elementary schools."

The Mississippi Farm to School Program provides farmers and schools with an educational experience that is unmatched.

"Farm to School is an outstanding partnership between the MDE, MDAC, Mississippi farmers and local schools," said Scott Clements, State Director of the Office of Child Nutrition and Healthy Schools. "Through this partnership, we are able to provide students with locally grown, fresh produce while promoting the state's economy. Further, through Farm to School events, students have a unique educational experience in meeting local farmers and having the opportunity to learn more about agriculture and nutrition."

Over the last 15 years, the MDE and the MDAC have made successful efforts to increase the amount of Mississippi-grown fruits and vegetables served in cafeterias across the state through the Department of Defense (DoD) Farm to School Program. The program offers schools 15 varieties of Mississippi-grown fruits and vegetables, including butterbeans, southern peas, sweet potatoes, yellow squash, butternut squash, zucchini, turnip greens, collard greens, cantaloupes, watermelons, green beans, corn cobbettes, cucumbers, blueberries and broccoli crowns.

"The Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce is proud to be a part of the Farm to School Program collaboration with the Mississippi Department of Education," Hyde-Smith said. "The effort made to purchase fruits and vegetables directly from Mississippi creates a marketing opportunity for our farmers and increases the students' access to locally grown produce. Also, through this program, we are able to educate students where their food comes from, and we hope that some of them will take an interest in farming and growing for future generations."

The first full week of October was designated as Mississippi Farm to School Week by the Mississippi Legislature in 2012. Farm to School Week was introduced to schools in an effort to encourage them to serve locally-grown and locally-raised agricultural products in their meals and to recognize the substantial economic and health benefits of farm to school programs. Farm to School Week draws attention to the vast number of crops that are grown in Mississippi and serves as an educational tool to teach children where their food comes from beyond the grocery store.

"I was delighted to see so much stakeholder engagement in Mis-issippi for Farm to School Week, as diverse coalitions of partners are a key ingredient to Farm to School success," USDA Office of Community Food Systems National Director Erin Healy said. "The representation from state agencies, government, producers, funders and nonprofits at the event demonstrated how successfully Farm to School has been institutionalized in the state. It was evident that the classroom visits from farmers, combined with local produce served on the lunch line, had a positive impact on the students' willingness to try new vegetables — when I pointed the farmers out to the students at lunch and explained, 'he grew this corn and sweet potatoes,' they immediately all asked to try a bite from my tray. Such events continue to demonstrate that Farm to School is an effective way to strengthen local economies, connect our nation's farmers with income-generating markets such as schools and nurture our children with healthy, fresh foods."

The MDAC and the MDE participated in other farm to school celebrations throughout the state during Mississippi Farm to School Week. Representatives from both agencies attended special events at North Bay Elementary in Biloxi.

Highland Bluff Elementary School in Brandon welcomed farmers and state and local officials to their school during Mississippi Farm to School Week. This celebration, a collaboration of the MDAC the MDE and the Rankin County School District, gave students the opportunity to meet the farmers that grow many of the fruits and vegetables served in their cafeteria throughout the school year.

JD Farms Becomes The First USDA GAP Certified Tea Farm In the Country

By Alex Jacks
Communications &
Marketing Specialist — MDAC

A light, fresh aroma mingled with a sweet, floral fragrance wafts through the air as the wind blows across Camellia Sinensis bushes growing in a field in south Mississippi. The tea producing hedge bushes are ready to undergo the harvesting process.

Don Van de Werken and Jeff Brown use gas powered hedge trimmers to remove and blow several inches of the plant's leaves into a bag. From there, the leaves are allowed to wither and dry out before they undergo a rolling and fermentation process. Depending on what type of tea — green or black — they are making, Van de Werken and Brown process the same leaves differently.

The business partners own JD Farms in Poplarville, Mississippi. Each year, they plant, grow and harvest tea and blueberries. They started the farm in 2004 by only growing blueberries, but decided to expand their operation to include Pearl River Tea several years later.

"Blueberries are only available about six to seven weeks out of the year," Van de Werken said. "We decided we needed another crop but knew row crops were not good for this area. Tea grows in hot, humid weather and is not usually bothered by a lot of pests. Most of the time deer don't eat it, so it was perfect for us."

Van de Werken and Brown were determined to be successful in their endeavor to grow tea, so Van de Werken traveled to tea plantations in India and China to learn the best practices and to purchase the proper equipment.

The duo took their tea business a step further by inquiring about the Good Agricultural Practices/Good Handling Practices audit verification program.

"This time last year, we started actually selling our tea at farmers markets and in our tea shop on the farm," Van de Werken said. "We wanted to be diligent in our consumer safety and becoming GAP/GHP certified is one way to do that."

The United States Department of Agriculture implemented the GAP/GHP audit verification program in early 2002. Produce suppliers can acquire the GAP/GHP certification by allowing a USDA certifier to conduct a voluntary independent audit throughout their production and supply chain. The audit focuses on best agricultural practices to verify that fruits and vegetables are produced, packed, handled and stored in the safest manner possible to minimize risks of microbial food safety hazards.

The program does not guarantee the product is free from microbial contamination, but verifies the participant has taken proactive measures to reduce the risk of contamination by adhering to generally recognized industry best practices.

"JD Farms is one of our certified Good Agricultural Practices blueberry operations," said Kevin Riggins, Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce's Fruit and Vegetable Inspection Division Director and USDA audit certifier. "One day Don and Jeff, who have been growing tea for years, asked if they could become GAP certified for their tea."

Riggins contacted the USDA Agricultural Marketing Service audit division and collaborated with them on the correct procedures he had to follow to certify JD Farms.

"I worked alongside the USDA audit division office in Washington to determine what steps we needed to take to get their tea certified," he said. "Once the proper procedures were in place, USDA gave MDAC the approval to GAP certify Pearl River Tea."

Riggins conducted the same USDA GAP audit process as he would on any other commodity to GAP certify Pearl River Tea.

"Don and Jeff took me from the beginning of production to the end," he said. "They showed me how they planted the tea bushes, how they pruned and trimmed them and how they harvested them. By doing that, I was able to GAP certify their tea."

Through this process, USDA, JD Farms and the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce were given an opportunity to shine a new light on Mississippi and its farmers.

"Mississippi is proud to be home to the first GAP certified tea farm in the United States," Mississippi Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Cindy Hyde-Smith said. "Tea is a relatively new crop being grown in the state. The Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce appreciates USDA working with us so that we could offer the certification to JD Farms for their Pearl River Tea. This will open up marketing opportunities for them and other farms growing tea, allowing them to sell their products through avenues not previously available."

Although Pearl River Tea has not been GAP certified for very long, Van de Werken said he has confidence that by obtaining the audit certification they will see an increase in their tea sales.

"We are putting it in our marketing campaign now," he said. "Tea is a growing beverage across the country, but we already drink so much of it in the South that I think it will help. As we get into the holiday season, tea will go in tea baskets and sets, so hopefully we will see it there. Consumer safety is on everybody's minds, so we are excited about it. We have comfort knowing someone in the state is keeping an eye on us to do the right thing for our consumers."

MDAC currently offers a cost-share program to Mississippi farmers to provide financial assistance for the cost of obtaining the GAP/GHP certification. Funds for the cost-share program are provided through the USDA Specialty Crop Block Grant Program. This program will reimburse eligible farmers that have successfully passed a Good Agricultural Practices/Good Handling Practices certification for 75 percent of the cost up to a maximum of $500 per year. Reimbursement is for the initial audit only. Audits must be completed by an approved USDA certifier. To request an audit, visit www.mdac.ms.gov or contact Kevin Riggins at kevin@mdac.ms.gov or (601) 359-1138. Funds are available on a first-come, first-serve basis until the funds are depleted.

"The GAP/GHP cost-share program assists farmers in making food safety a priority," Hyde-Smith said. "It helps our farmers receive certification that verifies they are taking the proper precautions throughout the entire crop production process to ensure a safe food supply."

To learn more about the importance of implementing food safety practices on the farm, Hyde-Smith encourages farmers to watch MDAC's 15 minute informational video.

In an effort to promote the cost-share program and educate farmers on the importance of implementing food safety practices on the farm, the MDAC released a 15 minute informational video. Farmers can request a copy of the food safety video on DVD, receive more information about the GAP/GHP cost-share program, or obtain an application by contacting Susan Head at susan@mdac.ms.gov or (601) 359-1196, or by visiting www.mdac.ms.gov.
