Soybean Growth Stages, Conditions Vary Across State

By Nathan Gregory
MSU Extension Service

The process of planting this year's soybean crop in Mississippi has been anything but normal.

The only consistent variable has been rain, and a lot of it -- from an unusually wet winter and spring to the stormwater the state received from Hurricane Barry. Growers have done their best to plant in tight windows of time when both the clouds and the ground were dry. A long, stop-start planting season has been the result.

"If you look at our planting progress as a state, we consistently stayed two to three weeks behind 'normal' getting this year's crop in the ground," said Trent Irby, a soybean specialist with the Mississippi State University Extension Service. "We began planting early and have had to continue to plant on into July to get the acres planted that we have this year, ultimately ending up with a wide range of crop stages."

As of July 28, 88% of the state's soybean crop has bloomed, which is right at the five-year average. However, only 63% are setting pods, below the average of 71% for this point in the season.

Growth progress is not the only fluctuation in this year's soybean crop; its condition is also mixed. The U.S. Department of Agriculture grades 61% of Mississippi's soybeans as good or excellent, with the remaining 39% at fair or worse.

"Similarly to our other row crops, soybean acres have been off to a rough start this year. But considering everything the crop has gone through, a lot of acres look good compared to what they could have looked like at this point in the year," Irby said. "The major issue for the growing season up to a couple of weeks ago was just getting a satisfactory plant population when dealing with so many planting challenges."

State soybean acreage is estimated at 1.95 million planted acres, with 1.92 million acres forecasted for harvest. This amount would be down 270,000 harvested acres from last year. Farmland as a whole has taken a hit from wet weather, but the south Delta has been affected the most, with 200,000 acres under water and out of production for several months because of Mississippi River flooding.

"Those acres impacted by flooding include all of our row crops, but a large percentage of them would likely have been planted to soybean," Irby said.

The soybean market is holding steady from last year but significantly lower than 2017 levels. Cash soybeans are trading for about $8.72 per bushel in Greenville and $8.47 per bushel in Indianola. November 2019 soybean futures are trading around $9.05 per bushel.

The number of beans in storage is higher due to the low prices of 2018. Josh Maples, Extension agricultural economist, said there were 47% percent more soybeans stored in the U.S. this past June than in June 2018, a total of 1.8 billion bushels.

"This is a strange year to try to predict harvest time impact on prices due to the large storage from 2018 and the ongoing trade impacts from our tariff situation with China," Maples said. "Perhaps more important than both of those in the short term is the impact of significant late plantings this year and how that might impact yield. Higher yields than expected could push prices down, but lower yields could push prices up, and it is more uncertain than usual about what yields will end up being due to weather."

Later-planted soybeans are often subject to additional issues such as insect or disease problems. Producers will be monitoring beans on pace for an early October harvest for bollworms and stinkbugs.

"Stinkbug populations are starting to show up on older beans and have been teetering along below threshold, but nothing major," said Preston Aust, MSU Extension agent and row crop specialist in Humphreys County. "The biggest thing we've seen in the last few weeks is bollworms feeding on plants that are just now blooming. Growers here are making applications to those, and I think that will continue to be a problem until late plantings reach maturity."

2 6-ounce cartons of soy yogurt, strawberry or blueberry
1 cup strawberries or blueberries, fresh or frozen

Puree all ingredients in a blender until smooth. Pour mixture into a five-ounce paper cup or 1/2-cup popsicle mold. Place a popsicle stick in the center of mixture. Repeat to make three more popsicles. Freeze at least two hours or until firm.

Soy-Silken Dark Chocolate Pudding

1 12.3-ounce package silken tofu, drained
2/3 cup dark unsweetened cocoa powder
1 cup powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Whipped topping (optional)

Place tofu, cocoa powder, powdered sugar and vanilla in a food processor. Puree for one minute, scraping down sides as needed, or until very smooth. Spoon into individual parfait cups or place in a decorative serving dish. Refrigerate and serve topped with whipped cream, if desired.

Creamy Edamame Ginger Dip

1 cup edamame, shelled and cooked according to package directions
1 cup mayonnaise, soybean oil based
1/2 cup green onions, chopped
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon fresh ginger, minced
1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper

Puree edamame, mayonnaise, green onions, lemon juice, ginger and pepper in a food processor or blender for three to four minutes, scraping sides twice, until smooth. Thin mixture with water as needed. Serve with raw vegetables, crackers or pita chips.

Roasted Vegetable and Couscous Salad

3 cups broccoli florets, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
1 red bell pepper, cut into 1-inch squares
1 1/2 cups red onion, peeled and cut into 1/4-inch slices
6 tablespoons soybean oil, divided
1/2 tablespoon ground black pepper, divided
1/2 teaspoon salt, divided
1 1/2 cups dry, giant Israeli couscous
2 tablespoons balsamic vinegar

Preheat oven to 425 degrees F. Toss broccoli, peppers and onions with two tablespoons soybean oil and 1/4 teaspoon each salt and pepper. Place on foil-lined baking sheet. Bake for 15 minutes until vegetables are tender and lightly browned. Meanwhile, cook couscous according to package directions. Place cooked couscous and roasted vegetables in a large bowl. Pour vinegar and remaining soybean oil over salad and sprinkle with remaining salt and pepper; toss lightly until combined. You may substitute three cups cooked regular couscous, brown rice or quinoa.

Wholesome Soy Berry Pancakes

1 1/2 cups white whole-wheat flour
1/2 cup oatmeal, quick cooking
2 tablespoons baking powder
1 1/2 cups vanilla or plain soymilk
4 eggs
2 tablespoons brown sugar, packed
2 tablespoons soybean oil
4 cups fresh blueberries, divided
Maple syrup (optional)

Combine flour, oatmeal and baking powder in medium bowl. Whisk soymilk, eggs, brown sugar and soybean oil in large bowl until blended. Add flour mixture to soymilk; stir just until blended. Stir in two cups blueberries. Heat a large skillet over medium heat; brush lightly with soybean oil. Pour 1/4 cup batter into hot skillet; cook until bubbles begin to burst. Turn and continue cooking for one to two minutes or until golden. Repeat with remaining batter. Serve topped with remaining berries and maple syrup, if desired.

Tomato and Roasted Pepper Soup

1 tablespoon soybean oil
1 small onion, diced
1 clove garlic, chopped
1 28-ounce can peeled unsalted tomatoes, undrained
1/2 cup roasted red peppers, chopped
1/4 cup fresh basil leaves, packed
2 cups low sodium vegetable or chicken broth
2 cups plain soymilk
1 teaspoon salt and pepper, to taste

Heat soybean oil in a large saucepan over medium heat. Add onions and garlic and sauté for two to three minutes until soft. Transfer onions, garlic, tomatoes, red peppers, basil and vegetable broth in a food processor or blender. Puree for 30 seconds or until smooth. Return mixture to saucepan and heat over medium heat. Add soymilk and cook, stirring occasionally, until soup begins to simmer. Season with salt and pepper, as needed.

Coffee Chococcino

1 1/2 cups chocolate soymilk
4 teaspoons instant espresso powder (or to taste)

Microwave soymilk and espresso powder in medium uncovered microwave safe container on high for two minutes until very hot. Carefully pour mixture into blender. Cover and hold down lid with folded towel or pot holder. Be careful as liquid will be hot. Blend all ingredients on high for 30 seconds or until very frothy. Pour into two 12-ounce coffee mugs. Sprinkle with espresso powder, if desired. For a more intense coffee flavor, add six teaspoons espresso powder.

USDA Helps Mississippi Ag Producers and Businesses Save on Energy Costs

By Justin Wilkes
Public Affairs and Community
Economic Development Coordinator
Rural Development - USDA

Our goal at USDA Rural Development is to seek innovative ways to partner with rural communities and businesses to promote quality of life and prosperity throughout rural America. This mission includes supporting industries which serve as the economic foundation of these communities.

One program quickly gaining greater popularity in Mississippi is the Rural Energy for America Program (REAP). Many small rural businesses and agricultural producers know that energy costs can be a huge expense in their operating budgets. The REAP program has proven helpful in assisting producers and rural businesses in reducing these energy costs and improving energy efficiency, allowing the savings to be reinvested in the operation to support growth and job creation.

The REAP program provides guaranteed loan financing and grant funding to agricultural producers and small rural businesses for renewable energy systems and energy efficiency improvements. Funds can be used for renewable energy systems and alternative fuel systems or for the purchase, installation, and construction of energy efficiency improvements and equipment.

This fiscal year, USDA Rural Development has provided approximately $677,000 in federal grant and loan funding to support energy efficiency projects for agriculture producers and rural businesses across Mississippi. These funds have supported innovative projects such as the purchase and installation of energy efficient equipment, solar panel systems, insulation upgrades, and energy efficient lighting.

The REAP program also provides funding opportunities for energy audits and renewable energy development assistance (REDA) to eligible producers and rural small businesses. These programs help promote energy independence by increasing

The Roxanne Molnar Farm utilized the REAP program to modernize the second of two 40,000 capacity chicken houses. New ceiling fans, water evaporation elements, and radiant heaters were installed to maintain optimal temperatures.

Using REAP funds, this grocer installed new energy efficient doors on the coolers and instantly reduced their energy bill by $500 dollars a month.

the supply of renewable energy and decreasing the demand for energy through energy efficiency improvements, helping to lower energy costs over time. These funds can be used for energy audits, site assessments, and technical assistance, assisting with the purchase of office space, travel associated with assessments, and other project-related equipment operating expenses.

USDA currently has more than $400 million still available for renewable energy system and energy efficiency loan guarantees. We encourage you to visit our website at www.rd.usda.gov/ms, or call us at (601) 965-4316 to learn more about what we may have to offer to support and grow your business.

Smith County Miniature Donkey Deaths Solved

By Hannah East
Marketing Specialist
Market Development Division - MDAC

The Mississippi Agricultural and Livestock Theft Bureau (MALTB), the law enforcement division of the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce, solved the investigation into the mysterious deaths of miniature donkeys in Smith County. The investigation was led by MALTB Investigator Jamie Taylor.

The investigation began on May 20, 2019, when Taylor received a call from the Smith County Sheriff's Office stating that a miniature donkey had been killed on a farm. The owners reported that the donkey had been shot, which led to the investigation in conjunction with the Smith County Sheriff's Office.

By June 1, three additional miniature donkeys had been killed. Numerous interviews and other investigative techniques resumed until evidence was captured. During the night of July 3, surveillance equipment recorded three dogs attacking and killing a fifth miniature donkey. Experts then determined the death of all five donkeys was not the result of a gunshot, but rather from attacks by dogs.

"While this was an unfortunate incident, I am glad to know that the case has been solved, and I commend the efforts of Investigator Taylor and the Smith County Sheriff's Office," said Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Andy Gipson.

MALTB Director, Dean Barnard, praised Investigator Taylor and local law enforcement officials for their dedication to this case. "I appreciate the relentless efforts of Investigator Taylor and the assistance of the Smith County Sheriff's Office in investigating this case," said Barnard.

The Mississippi Agricultural and Livestock Theft Bureau enforces state laws pertaining to the theft of cattle, horses, swine, poultry, fish, farm equipment, chemicals, timber and all other farm or agriculture related crimes. To report or provide information regarding an agricultural crime, call (800) 678-2660.

Wild hogs are non-native, nuisance animals that cause more than $60 million in property damage in Mississippi each year, with substantial damage caused to row crops, pastures, and forestlands. In response, Agriculture and Commerce Commissioner Andy Gipson initiated The Commissioner's Wild Hog Challenge to raise awareness regarding these destructive animals.

Participation in the challenge is simple. Commissioner Gipson wants to see results of your efforts in protecting Mississippi's agriculture from nuisance wild hogs. To participate, upload photos of wild hogs that you harvest and/or trap between August 1 and September 30 and supply the required information related to the harvest at www.mdac.ms.gov/wildhogchallenge. The harvest must take place on Mississippi agricultural lands.

By Paige Manning
Director of Marketing
and Public Relations- MDAC

Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Andy Gipson reminds farmers that they can sign up for USDA's Market Facilitation Program through December 6, 2019, at local USDA-FSA offices. The Market Facilitation Program provides aid to assist farmers and ranchers directly impacted by trade disruptions prompted by foreign retaliatory tariffs.

"While the federal administration is dealing with retaliatory trade tariffs, I applaud USDA's action to help our hardworking farmers, who are working through these challenges. I appreciate the work of President Trump and his administration, including Secretary of Agriculture Sonny Perdue, to provide this much needed assistance to our farmers," said Gipson. "I encourage our producers to take the time to visit their local USDA-FSA offices to find out more about this opportunity and to sign up."

For more information about the Market Facilitation program, visit www.farmers.gov/mfp. County payment rates can be found by visiting www.fsa.usda.gov/programs-and-services/market-facilitation-program/index.

Ag Museum Mules

By Hannah East
Marketing Specialist
Market Development Division - MDAC

Ag Commissioner Andy Gipson is proud to announce the newest additions to the Mississippi Ag & Forestry Museum, two female "molly" mules. Purchased from Nickey Howell's farm in Trenton, Tennessee, these massive beauties will provide the museum a brand new farm exhibit and a 'hands on' experience for visitors.

Standing over 17 hands tall, these mules are only the second set of animals to be housed at the museum since the barn fire in 2014, following the Commissioner's horse, Gunsmoke. The working farm mules are 6 and 7 years old, weighing over 1,600 lbs. each. As residents of the Ag Museum, they will be the focal point of several educational classes.

Often, students from local schools will attend the museum where they learn about the physiology and care of farm animals. Now, students and guests will be able to observe firsthand the maintenance and laborious capabilities of working farm mules.

"I am so happy to present Mississippi's own pair of working molly mules to the public. Now you, your children and your grandchildren can see them at your Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum," said Commissioner Andy Gipson.

The Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum is open Monday-Saturday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. For more information, visit their website at www.msagmuseum.org.

Genuine MS Spotlights Pearl River Tea Company

By Donna West, Division Director
Market Development, MDAC

After water, the most widely consumed beverage in the world is tea! In the United States, it can be found in almost 80% of all households, with over 159 million Americans drinking tea on any given day. Southerners love their tea and Mississippi is no exception.

Although the South and Northeast have the greatest concentration of tea drinkers, Mississippi is not routinely considered to be a state where tea is actually grown. Mississippi's soil and climate are well suited for Camellia Sinensis, or tea.

Growing tea since 2006 is the Pearl

River Tea Company, a Genuine MS Grown member. With more than 10,000 tea plants and a complete tea processing center, Pearl River Tea Company, located in Poplarville, produces a variety of teas from mid-March through early November. Growing tea in this Hospitality State is a truly Genuine MS enterprise!

Genuine MS, the state-wide branding program created by MDAC serves as an economic development tool to promote products grown, raised, made or crafted in Mississippi. For more information about other exceptional products across the state, visit GenuineMS.com or call 601-359-1110.
