USDA Ready to Assist Farmers, Ranchers and Communities Affected by Winter Storms

By USDA

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) reminds rural communities, farmers and ranchers, families and small businesses affected by the recent winter storms that USDA has programs that provide assistance. USDA staff in the regional, state and county offices are prepared with a variety of program flexibilities and other assistance to residents, agricultural producers and impacted communities.

"USDA is committed to getting help to producers and rural Americans impacted by the severe weather in many parts of the country. As severe weather and natural disasters continue to threaten the livelihoods of thousands of our farming families, we want you and your communities to know that USDA stands with you," said Kevin Shea, acting Secretary of Agriculture. "Visit farmers.gov or your local USDA Service Center to inquire about assistance."

Risk management and disaster assistance for agricultural operations:

USDA offers several risk management and disaster assistance options to help producers recover after they are impacted by severe weather, including those impacted by winter storms and extreme cold.

Even before disasters strike, USDA provides tools for producers to manage their risk through the Federal Crop Insurance Program, a public-private partnership between USDA's Risk Management Agency and private companies and agents. For crops that do not have crop insurance available, the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP) is available through the local Farm Service Agency. This risk protection includes crop production loss and tree loss for certain crop insurance products. It is recommended that producers reach out to their crop insurance agent or local FSA office for more information.

Producers that signed up for Federal Crop Insurance or NAP who suffer losses are asked to report crop damage to their crop insurance agent or local FSA office, respectively, within 72 hours of damage discovery and follow up in writing within 15 days.

Livestock and perennial crop producers often have more limited risk management options available, so there are several disaster programs for them. Key programs include:

- The Livestock Indemnity Program and the Emergency Assistance for Livestock, Honeybee and Farm-raised Fish Program reimburses producers for a portion of the value of livestock, poultry and other animals that were killed or severely injured by a natural disaster or loss of feed.

- The Tree Assistance Program provides cost share assistance to rehabilitate or replant and clean-up damage to orchards and vineyards that kill or damage the tree, vines or shrubs. NAP or Federal Crop Insurance often only covers the crop and not the plant.

USDA reminds producers that it's critical to keep accurate records to document the losses and illnesses following this devastating cold weather event. Livestock producers are advised to document beginning livestock numbers by taking photos or videos of any losses.

Other common documentation options include:

- Purchase records
- Production records
- Vaccination records
- Bank or other loan documents
- Third-party certification

Additionally, USDA can provide financial resources through its Environmental Quality Incentives Program to help with immediate needs and long-term support to help recover from natural disasters and conserve water resources. Assistance may also be available for emergency animal mortality disposal from natural disasters and other causes.

The Farm Service Agency (FSA) also has a variety of loans available including emergency loans that are triggered by disaster declarations and operating loans that can assist producers with credit needs.

Ensure food safety:

USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) is helping ensure affected households and communities are taking the proper steps to reduce the risk of foodborne illness during severe weather and power outages. Food safety tips for before, during and after a weather emergency are available on the FSIS website.

During a power outage, a refrigerator will keep food safely cold for about 4 hours if it is unopened, and a full freezer will hold a safe temperature for approximately 48 hours (24 hours if it is half full and the door remains closed). During a snowstorm, do not place perishable food out in the snow. Outside temperatures can vary and food can be exposed to unsanitary conditions and animals.

Care for livestock and pets:

USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) is helping to meet the emergency needs of pets and their owners, as inspectors coordinate closely with zoos, breeders and other licensed facilities to ensure animals in their care remain safe.

On the livestock front, APHIS veterinarians are ready to work alongside partners to conduct on-site assessments to document the needs of affected producers. More information about protecting livestock is available on APHIS' Protecting Livestock During a Disaster page. Information about protecting household pets and service animals can be found on APHIS' Animal Care Emergency Programs webpage.

APHIS has additional staff on stand-by to provide support should the situation escalate in severity or the number of affected livestock operations increase. Should it be necessary, APHIS has the expertise to assist with carcass removal and disposal as well.

APHIS' Animal Care (AC) program is also prepared to respond. The Animal Care Program oversees the welfare of certain animals that are exhibited to the public, bred for commercial sale and used in medical research. In addition to providing technical assistance to regulated facilities, AC inspectors may be checking affected facilities to assess damage and ensure the welfare of their animals.

For more information about APHIS' response efforts and how to protect pets and service animals in disasters, follow APHIS on Twitter at @USDA-APHIS.

Helping individuals recover:

USDA's Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) works with state, local and nongovernmental organizations to provide emergency nutrition assistance, including food packages and infant formula, to households, shelters and mass feeding sites serving people in need. FNS also provides emergency flexibilities in administering nutrition assistance programs at the request of states and works with local authorities to provide benefits. Emergency nutrition assistance and flexibilities requested by states and approved by FNS are posted to the FNS Disaster Assistance website.

Visit USDA's disaster resources website to learn more about USDA disaster preparedness and response. For more information on USDA disaster assistance programs, contact your local USDA Service Center.

March is National Nutrition Month

By Rebecca Turner, MS, RD, CSSD, LD
RebeccaTurnerNutrition.com

March is National Nutrition Month, and as a registered dietitian, I invite you to learn more about healthful eating for you and your family. There is no one size fits all approach to fitness and health. That is why this year's theme is "Personalize Your Plate." We're all different, and many factors shape our food choices, like taste and our Southern culture and family traditions. You don't have to give up all your personal food preferences to improve your health.

Eating the MyPlate way, based on the 2020 Dietary guidelines, can help you build a balanced plate with your favorite foods in mind. At every main meal, aim to fill half your plate with fruits and vegetables, allowing for a serving of lean protein, such as chicken, fish, seafood, beans, or nuts/seeds, and whole grains like brown rice, whole wheat bread, or pasta. Don't forget the dairy. Milk, cheese, and yogurt provide high-quality protein and three nutrients lacking in American diets - calcium, vitamin D, and potassium. Most often, all it takes is a few tweaks to your current blue plate specials to boost a meal's wholesomeness.

When ordering a fried fish or chicken plate, opt for vegetables as sides, and forgo any other fried foods. Enjoy your favorite burger without the fries, and opt for a side salad, or the vegetable of the day. When you can, order your main entree grilled, and leave the bacon for breakfast. For better heart health, leave the bacon off burgers, salads, or baked potatoes. At home, turn to heart-healthy olive oils for marinating and flavoring foods. Purchase lean cuts of beef and pork such as sirloin, top loin, tenderloin, or flank. These may be cut as roasts or steaks. For ground beef, choose 95% lean ground beef. Make an effort to leave the salt on the table and order your tea less sweet. Unsweet tea, water, or a glass of cold milk will healthfully quench any thirst.

If you're lactose intolerant, you may be avoiding dairy foods. Still, dairy provides essential nutrients, such as calcium, potassium, and vitamin D, that people of all ages need to grow and maintain healthier bodies and minds. Those

Easy Creamy Mac and Cheese

This may be one of the easiest mac and cheese recipes, but it won't disappoint when it comes to creaminess! Simple enough for a busy week night dinner, but delicious enough to wow your guests at any dinner party.

Ingredients

- 1 pound pasta, penne or campanelle
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 2 cups milk, warmed
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon powdered mustard
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 cups shredded Cheddar cheese

Instructions

1. Bring about 4 quarts of water to a boil over high heat in a large heavy-bottom pot. Cook pasta per package directions. Drain in a colander and set aside.
2. Place the pot back on the stovetop and melt butter over medium heat. Sprinkle butter with flour and whisk until well combined, cook for approximately 2-3 minutes while continuously whisking. Gradually whisk in warmed milk. Over low heat, let sauce simmer, stirring often to ensure milk doesn't burn, until it begins to thicken or coats the back of a spoon. Stir in salt, dry mustard powder, nutmeg and pepper. Add in shredded cheese a 1/2 cup at a time, making sure it's melted before adding more. Stir in cooked pasta until coated.
3. Pour into a serving dish and serve immediately.

Source of recipe: Rebecca Egsieker, The Dairy Chef

living with lactose intolerance can personalize their plate by choosing aged cheeses, like cheddar or Parmesan, which contain almost no lactose. Cultured dairy foods, like yogurt or kefir, have beneficial bacteria that help you digest lactose. You can always reach for lactose-free milk, which is real milk, minus the lactose.

Every time you choose a meal or snack, you are "personalizing" your plate, so why not make it healthier. Everyone is different, and a lot of factors affect our food choices.

Work with a Registered Dietitian to get guidance when personalizing your plate.

Plentiful Pollinators

By Nicole Kitchens
 High Tunnel Administrator
 & Garden Specialist - MDAC

Did you know that pollinators are responsible for helping over 80% of the world's flowering plants to reproduce? This percentage includes crops that produce more than one-third of the world's food supply. Although many people consider insects to be annoying, the truth is that without pollinators, we wouldn't have food! We couldn't survive. What exactly is a pollinator? A pollinator is any animal that assists with plant reproduction. Animals that pollinate include bats, bees, birds, beetles, flies, small mammals and wasps. Bees are perhaps some of our most important pollinators, as they feed on pollen and transport pollen grains as they travel from plant to plant. Air and water also act as pollinators.

Anyone can help to attract pollinators including the backyard gardener. By planting native varieties of flowers and trees, you can provide a mixture of plants that produce both pollen and nectar. In early spring, pollinators rely upon shrubs and trees such as early flowering fruit and ornamental varieties-some examples are plum, cherry, blueberry, dogwood and flowering quince.

In summer months, planting vegetables, flowering annuals and perennials provide healthy food sources for pollinators. Consider planting varieties that will bloom in different seasons to attract insects and mammals throughout the year. To naturally attack unwanted insects that can terrorize the vegetable garden, try companion planting. This method consists of pairing up plants in order to repel pests. Try mixing flowers, herbs and vegetables together.

There are many varieties that co-exist well in the garden. For example, planting dill, borage, basil, nasturtiums and/or French marigolds next to tomatoes not only 'increases' the flavor of the tomatoes, but also create colorful blooms that also act as a pollinator food source and produce natural plant chemicals which deter the 'unwanted' insects.

Pollinator populations are at a decline across the globe due to habitat loss, disease, pesticide use, and climate change. Imagine not having many of the fresh, healthy foods you love to eat. By creating a successful pollinator habitat in your own backyard, you can help to perpetuate and promote pollinator species diversity which in turn provides a food source for us all.
