Use Native Plants For Pollinators, Environment

By Susan Collins-Smith
MSU Extension Service

Native plants have garnered a lot of attention, especially because of their relationship to pollinators, but these plants are valuable for many other reasons.

In addition to pollen, they provide food and shelter for birds and other wildlife, as well as creating biodiversity in the ecosystem.

"Native plants are critical to enhance biodiversity in the landscape," said Bob Brzuszek, an Extension professor of landscape architecture at Mississippi State University. "Studies have shown even small backyards can be important habitats for pollinator insects, birds and animal life."

While nonnative plants do provide

Rudbeckia, commonly called black-eyed Susan, is one of several native Mississippi plants that provide food and shelter for pollinators and wildlife while contributing to environmental biodiversity. nectar and food sources for butterflies and birds, native plants play an important part in providing food and shelter to wildlife. In fact, some native plants have special relationships with certain insects. For example, some native bees can feed only on the plants with which they evolved.

Brzuszek notes that native plants are particularly important in urban and metropolitan areas.

"Having native plants is especially important in growing urban areas near Memphis, Jackson and the Gulf Coast where wildlife habitat is dwindling," Brzuszek said.

What are native plants?

So, what makes native plants different from other plants.

Eddie Smith, Extension agent and county coordinator in Pearl River County, explains that native plants occur naturally in a particular region, ecosystem and habitat, either on land or in water, and have evolved to thrive in that area. These plants include trees, shrubs, grasses and wildflowers.

Why are native plants beneficial?

Native plants are generally low-maintenance, easy to grow and less expensive to maintain because they have evolved to tolerate their environment.

"When you plant native plants, you'll reduce pollution and use less energy and resources by reducing mowing and trimming," Smith said. "You won't have to use as much water or pesticides, either."

Native plants are also important in food production. They support the insects, birds and other animals that pollinate all types of food plants, including fruit trees and garden plants, Smith said.

These plants can also enhance aesthetics and add value to your property. They can be used in the same ways as other landscape plants, such as privacy fences, windbreaks and shade. No matter what garden style one wants to achieve, there is a native plant that will work.

"The great thing about native plants is that they can fit any home style -- from the most formal gardens to country estates," said

Brzuszek. "Cherry laurel makes an elegant privacy hedge and even wax myrtles can be trimmed into various shapes. Perennial herbaceous plants such as yellow coneflower, salvias or our own state wildflower -- Coreopsis -- can be tucked into existing flower beds."

Where do native plants grow?

Native plants can grow throughout Mississippi, but gardeners should know that they have water, light, and soil-type preferences.

"There are coastal plants such as Sabal palmetto that can't take the freezes in the north, or more northern plants, such as white trout lily, that simply won't tolerate the heat of the Gulf Coast," Brzuszek said.

In addition to the Extension Service, local, state or national parks offer programs or information on native plants that are most common in a particular area, Brzuszek added. Conservation organizations, such as the MSU Crosby Arboretum, are also great resources.

Where can native plants be purchased?

Many local plant nurseries sell native plants. Local conservation groups or organizations, such as the Crosby Arboretum, also sell them. Many Master Gardener groups sell native plants during fundraising sales. Contact the local Extension office for more information about where to purchase native plants.

Tips for using native plants

Some native plant gardens can be viewed as unkempt. If homeowners want to include minimally managed wildlife zones or native plant gardens in areas open to public view, Brzuszek recommends these tips:

- Create a well-managed edge, such as a mow zone or an edging of bricks or timbers to show that the landscape is being taken care of and not neglected.

- Include some architectural features, such as a bird bath or bench, in the planting area. These items add a human element that people can understand.

- Put a sign in a pollinator garden that helps convey the purpose to neighbors and passersby.

"Better yet, invite the neighbors over for a cup of coffee and tell them what you are trying to do. Education is the best way to prevent misunderstandings," Brzuszek said.

April Designated as Native Plant Month in State of Mississippi

MDAC to Promote Mississippi Native Plant Month and Educate the Public on its Importance

By Hannah East
Marketing Specialist - MDAC

On March 6, 2023, Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Andy Gipson joined Governor Tate Reeves as he signed Senate Bill 2137 into law designating April as Mississippi Native Plant Month in order to preserve the heritage and importance of native plants for clean air, water and soil stability, and for related purposes. In addition, the bill charges the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce with promoting Mississippi Native Plant Month and educating the public on its importance.

"The Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce is proud to be a part of this new law that designates April as Native Plant Month," said Commissioner Gipson. "Most people may not realize the importance of native plants and the impact they have on our environment. Our agency will work to not only promote Mississippi Native Plant Month, but also educate the public on these crucial plants, such as our own native Southern Magnolia and a variety of native grasses and wildflowers that benefit Mississippi's wildlife and natural beauty."

Mississippi is home to more than 2,700 native plant species which include trees, shrubs, vines, grasses and wildflowers. These native plants are well adapted to the state's soils, wetlands, temperatures, precipitation and environmental conditions, making them essential for conserving and protecting our environment. According to the Mississippi Native Plant Society, native plants preserve our rich biological heritage; provide shelter, as well as nectar, pollen and seeds that serve as food for native butterflies, insects, birds, and other wildlife in ways that nonnative plants cannot provide; provide diversity in form, texture and color to fit any landscape style; and are hardy and easy to grow once established.

During the month of April, the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce will be reaching out in an effort to see that all Mississippians learn and appreciate the importance and history of Mississippi's native plants and the many benefits they provide to pollinators, and to preserve Mississippi's biological heritage in aiding in the prevention of flooding and erosion and maintaining and preserving the health of Mississippi's economy and environment. In doing so, we expect to assist in a number of plantings across the state in partnership with Keep Mississippi Beautiful, the Mississippi Department of Transportation and others.

Pearl Mom-and-Pop Win Mississippi Poultry Association Contest for Best Chicken Wings

By Lauren Fortenberry
Event Coordinator
Mississippi Poultry Association

The winner of the Mississippi Poultry Association's (MPA) Best Chicken Wings in Mississippi contest is Nectar Farms in Pearl. The winner was announced at the Dixie National Rodeo.

The MPA contest solicited votes from the Mississippi Restaurant Association's members who are Mississippi-based, independently owned restaurants. More than 3300 people voted for 89 different restaurants in the first round on the MPA Facebook page.

In the second round, the customers of the Top 10 restaurants competed for the title of Best Wings in Mississippi. Nectar Farms won by a wide margin. The mom-and-pop restaurant was opened in the Outlets of Mississippi two and a half years ago by Mark and Melissa Skaggs.

"We are incredibly honored to win best chicken wings in Mississippi. When we started our little business 2 1/2 years ago, we never thought it would explode the way that it has," Melissa said.

Their favorite sauce for the wings is "honey hot." Melissa said they don't offer a new sauce without first allowing customers to test it for free. Originally from New Orleans, the Skaggs also serve pizza, mini-crawfish pies and shrimp baskets.

MPA Board Chair Bobby James of Amick Farms and Past Chair Dr. Ryn Laster of Cal-Maine presented a plaque to the Skaggs' at the Dixie National Rodeo.

The others in the Top 10 listed in alphabetical order were:

- Hickory Hog, Lucedale
- M-Bar Sports Grill, Jackson
- Main Street Seafood, Columbia
- Sal & Mookie's, Jackson
- STAGgerIN, Starkville
- The Compound, Belzoni
- Uptown Soulfood Diner, Columbia
- WTF@, Starkville
- Zachary's, Columbus

Poultry is Mississippi's largest agricultural industry with an economic impact of $23 billion on the state's economy. MPA represents the state's 1,700 poultry growers, the seven poultry and egg processors and allied companies that provide goods and services to the industry. Mississippi produces more than 700 million broiler chickens per year, ranking sixth in the nation.

For six decades, patrons have contributed funds in exchange for a magnolia tree planted in honor of or in memory of loved ones. Over the years the program has planted tens of thousands of magnolia trees along state highways. Due to new regulations, the program needed adjustments. Enjoy the beautiful garden created in honor of your loved ones located at the Mississippi Ag and Forestry Museum in Jackson, Mississippi.

The main garden has a formal design incorporating a variety of plants, trees, flora, stone, water, and wood. The gardens will be strategically lighted to enhance the beauty of the design at night. Enjoy the lush landscape encircling the bronze "Working Man" sculpture donated to the Ag Museum in 2011. Relax on the cypress wood seating to enjoy the container gardens and water features framed with cypress shutters. Floral beds offer seasonal beauty outside of the central area.

The goal is to complete the entire project in 2021, honoring the 60th anniversary of Magnolia Gardens, formerly known as Avenue of Magnolias. We thank you for your contributions thus far. In order to complete the gardens, including the Avenue of Magnolias, $150,000.00 in additional funds are needed.

Commissioner Andy Gipson and MDAC Celebrate National Ag Day

Governor Reeves Signs Proclamation Declaring March 21, 2023, Ag Day In Mississippi

By Hannah East,
Marketing Specialist - MDAC

On March 21, 2023, Commissioner Andy Gipson and the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce celebrated National Ag Day at the Mississippi State Capitol, featuring two cow milking contests. Governor Tate Reeves signed a proclamation declaring Ag Day in the state of Mississippi.

"We celebrate National Ag Day and Ag Day in Mississippi today to shine a light on the truth that all of our food comes from the farm," said Commissioner Gipson. "It's important that we support our local farmers. We have fewer farmers today than ever before, but agriculture remains strong and is Mississippi's largest industry. Every meal that we enjoy began on a farm."

Local television news reporters Kayla Thompson with WJTV and Morgan Harris with WLBT competed in the first milking contest. Kayla Thompson won the round after milking a total of 1.5 cups of milk from Sophia the cow. The second contest featured Ag Commissioner Andy Gipson and his wife, Mississippi's First Lady of Agriculture Leslie Gipson. Leslie Gipson was the overall winner with a total of 3.5 cups also milked from Sophia the cow. "I must confess I'm not surprised that Leslie beat me fair and square in the milking contest!" said Commissioner Gipson. The dairy cows are owned by Beason Family Farms of Philadelphia, who also provided complimentary chocolate milk to guests.

After he signed the proclamation, Governor Reeves said, "Mississippi farmers are the backbone of our state's economy. They're the reason why the agriculture industry contributed over $9 billion to Mississippi's economy in 2022. Our state is a global leader in the agriculture industry, and I was proud to proclaim today as Agriculture Day in Mississippi. If you see a farmer, thank them for feeding Mississippi and America."

National Ag Day was started in 1973 by the Agriculture Council of America as an effort to encourage every American to understand how food and fiber products are produced, to appreciate the role agriculture plays in providing safe, abundant and affordable products, to value the essential role of agriculture in maintaining a strong economy, and to acknowledge and consider career opportunities in the agriculture, food and fiber industry.

Mississippi Market Bulletin staff, Editor Claude Nash and Marketing Specialist Hannah East, were the official milk score and time keepers for the contests.
