Get Them Eating: The Importance of Getting Newly Weaned or Received Calves on Feed

By Dr. Brandi Karisch
Extension Beef Cattle Specialist,
Mississippi State University

Spring means weaning time for fall calving herds and can be a stressful time of year for both people and cattle. Starting new cattle, whether they be newly weaned or freshly received, into a stocker operation, can often be a challenge. An important goal during this time should be to get calves started on feed quickly and eating well. Management of their diets can have long-term impacts on performance.

The receiving phase offers unique nutritional challenges as compared to other phases of a calf's life. Proper nutritional management during this phase is critical to ensuring success and profitability. These calves are often stressed upon arrival or after weaning and will likely have low feed and water intake for several days. Some calves may even be naïve to feed, hay, or even water troughs, and calves should be carefully observed during this time.

Due to their low feed intake, receiving diets should be formulated to be highly palatable, stimulate intake, and provide a more concentrated source of key nutrients.

Some guidelines to follow include:

1. Provide access to clean fresh water. Water is an essential nutrient and should be readily accessible. Be sure that water troughs are free of mold and algae growth. Consider the fact that calves may be accustomed to drinking from ponds or streams and may not immediately recognize an automatic waterer. Unless cattle have been previously exposed, a ball waterer is not recommended for weaning or receiving.

2. Provide access to free choice hay. Calves will likely be able to easily recognize and consume hay. They should have access to good quality grass hay to stimulate proper rumen function.

3. Provide palatable feed with greater concentrations of nutrients. On average, feed intake of newly received calves is low. Because of this, diets for calves starting on feed should be formulated both to maximize intake and provide greater concentrations of required nutrients. Receiving diets must be highly palatable, stimulate intake, provide acceptable levels of critical nutrients and minimize the potential for nutritional disorders. Generally, receiving diets containing more than 55 percent concentrate can lead to digestive problems, resulting in higher medication costs.

4. Formulate diets based on age and size of calf. Diets should be formulated so the calf receives at least maintenance requirements for protein, vitamins, and minerals when feed consumption is 1.0 to 1.5 percent of body weight. Lightweight (350 pounds or less) and early weaned (weaned at or before four months of age) calves may need more nutrient dense diets than larger, later-weaned calves. These lighter calves require a higher percentage of protein and a good source of digestible energy in their diets than do larger calves.

5. Be mindful of protein source. The source of protein is also critical in receiving diets. Non-protein nitrogen (NPN; such as urea) is not recommended in receiving diets for calves less than 600 pounds and should be avoided altogether for feeding lightweight calves. Plant protein sources such as soybean meal, cottonseed meal, and alfalfa are acceptable protein supplements for these calves.

6. Offer a good quality mineral. Providing proper mineral supplementation is an essential component of a good nutritional program for calves. Phosphorus levels are typically low on forage-based diets, and in addition to sodium and chloride (NaCl or Salt), phosphorus is a key mineral to supplement to balance the diet. Trace minerals such as zinc and copper, along with vitamins A and E, are also important in meeting the nutritional needs of calves.

7. Place feed and water along the boundaries of pens. Calves initially walk the boundaries of their new pens searching for a way to escape. Placing feed bunks and water troughs along the fence lines of receiving pens as opposed to in the center of the pens increases the frequency of calves walking past the bunks and troughs.

8. Provide adequate feed bunk and water trough space. Timid calves may not receive sufficient shares of feed if bunk space is limiting. At least 12 linear inches of bunk space per head is recommended for incoming cattle. A good guideline is to provide 18 to 24 linear inches of bunk space per calf.

9. Be consistent with feed deliveries. Feed cattle approximately the same time each day to establish a routine, consistent eating time. Twice-a-day feedings can be worthwhile the first two to three weeks of the receiving period for highly stressed, young, or lightweight cattle. Sick calves may be slow to come to the feed bunk, so it is useful to observe feeding behavior to help identify potential health problems.

Highlighting Mississippi Products on the World Stage

By Andy Gipson
Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce

We all depend on the American farmer for survival. We are blessed to live in Mississippi with a strong agricultural economy where our farmers produced a record $9.7 billion in agricultural and forest products last year. While we continue to see an increase in local demand for agricultural products, access to global markets remains important for the growth of our state's largest industry, especially given that 96 percent of the world's population lives outside of the United States. In Mississippi, about one out of every three acres of production is bound for international markets which are critical for Mississippi farmers, ranchers, landowners, and for Mississippi's economy.

I recently promoted Mississippi's agricultural, food, and forest products in the Dutch, Scandinavian, and surrounding markets in Europe. It was my honor to represent Mississippi in the first USDA Agribusiness Trade Mission in the Netherlands led by USDA Under Secretary for Trade and Foreign Agricultural Affairs Alexis M. Taylor. We were joined by commissioners and secretaries of agriculture representing three other states, along with U.S. agribusinesses and farm organizations including the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation.

We met with key Dutch government officials and industry groups to discuss expanding economic partnerships between the U.S. and the Netherlands and markets throughout Europe. One highlight was the visit to the Port of Rotterdam, Europe's largest seaport. A variety of agricultural and forest products from Mississippi are shipped through the Port of Rotterdam including sustainable wood pellets for fuel from the Port of Pascagoula. Year-to-date Mississippi shipped more than six times the amount of wood pellets to the Netherlands as the entire year of 2022, due in part to increasing European demand for wood pellet fuel because of the Russian invasion of Ukraine.

The Dutch and Northern European importers, retailers, and consumers recognize U.S. agricultural, food, and forest products for quality, reliability, and sustainability. The Netherlands is already an important U.S. trading partner, and I foresee the Netherlands increasing as a trading partner for the State of Mississippi. Some specific products of interest are forest products, sweet potatoes, soybeans, beef, and poultry.

While the Netherlands is a small country, it is the largest importer within the European Union and considered the gateway for U.S. products. The top U.S. agricultural import into the Netherlands is sweet potatoes, and I was thrilled to learn some of the sweet potatoes in their retail markets were grown right here in Mississippi. Mississippi is the third-largest sweet potato producing state in the country, and we have an opportunity to expand that market through exports.

Europe craves sustainable forest products for fuel and construction; but they oppose reduction of forests for development or other agricultural purposes. For us in Mississippi, sustainability is part of the business model. For each tree harvested in Mississippi, we replant at least three trees on average. We have more forested land today than forty years ago. We thin our forests to keep them healthy, and the products from thinning and harvesting our timber do not result in the loss of any forest acres. We're seeing export increases in part due to our sound forest management. In 2022, Mississippi only exported $1.18 million of total agricultural products (mostly forest products) to the Netherlands. In the first two months of 2023 alone, Mississippi has already exported more than $6 million of forest products to the Netherlands. We have an overabundance of southern yellow pine and hardwoods in Mississippi and this market will continue expansion.

I look forward to continuing our efforts and strengthening the relationships built during this trade mission for Mississippi's agricultural, food, and forest products. The Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce is partnering with the Southern US Trade Association (SUSTA) to host an inbound trade mission for forest products in 2024. Vetted, qualified buyers from multiple countries will visit Mississippi to learn about our timber industry and conduct business-to-business meeting with producers. This follows the success of MDAC's 2022 Mississippi Timber International Trade Mission with buyers from Mexico, Dominican Republic, Great Britain, Spain, and Vietnam which resulted in sales of $7 million the week of the event.

Mississippi's strong, diverse agriculture industry with proximity to ports on the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway, the Mississippi River, and the Gulf of Mexico create export opportunities for our producers. I encourage our farmers, food companies, and agribusinesses interested in new international markets to contact our office. Through our association with SUSTA, there are opportunities for qualified companies to participate in trade missions, trade shows, and product promotions. Just as we actively promote our products locally through the Genuine MS® program, we will continue to proudly highlight Mississippi's abundant and sustainable agricultural, food, and forest products on the world stage.

Sweet potatoes from the United States including our famous Mississippi sweet potatoes - delivered and sold right here in Europe.

From Our Kitchen To Yours

Beef – It's What's For Dinner!

Grilled Cowboy Steaks

2 beef Ribeye Steaks (about 1 pound)

Rub:

2 teaspoons sweet paprika
1-1/2 teaspoons dried thyme leaves
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon onion powder
1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)
1/2 teaspoon pepper

Combine Rub ingredients; press evenly onto beef Ribeye Steaks. Cook's Tip: Beef Top Sirloin, Top Loin (Strip) or Tenderloin Steaks, cut 1 inch thick; or 2 pounds beef Porterhouse or T-bone steaks, cut 1 inch thick may be used. Place steak(s) on grid over medium, ash-covered coals or over medium heat on preheated gas grill. Grill according to the chart for medium rare (145°F) to medium (160°F) doneness, turning occasionally.

Steak and Blue Cheese Wraps

1 pound beef Sirloin Tip Steaks, cut 1/8 to 1/4 inch thick
1-1/2 teaspoons seasoned pepper blend or garlic-pepper seasoning
2 teaspoons vegetable oil
Salt

4 tablespoons reduced-fat or fat-free blue cheese dressing
4 medium flour tortillas (8 to 10-inch diameter), warmed
4 romaine lettuce leaves

Toppings:

Sliced tomatoes, sliced red onion

Stack beef steaks; cut lengthwise in half, then crosswise into 1-inch wide strips. Combine beef and garlic-pepper in medium bowl; toss to coat. Heat 1 teaspoon oil in large nonstick skillet over medium-high heat until hot. Add half of beef; stir-fry 1 to 3 minutes or until outside surface of beef is no longer pink. (Do not overcook.) Remove from skillet. Repeat with remaining beef and oil. Season with salt, as desired. Spread dressing evenly on tortillas; top with lettuce leaf. Divide beef and toppings, as desired, among tortillas. Roll up tightly.

Nacho Beef Dip

1 pound Ground Beef (93% lean or leaner)
1 jar (15 to 16 ounces) cheese dip with salsa (salsa con queso) or other cheese dip
1/2 cup thick-and-chunky mild or medium salsa
Toppings:
Blue, yellow and/or white corn tortilla chips (optional)
Diced red bell pepper, thinly sliced green onions, sliced ripe olives (optional)

Heat nonstick skillet over medium heat until hot. Add Ground Beef; cook 8 to 10 minutes, breaking into 3/4-inch crumbles and stirring occasionally. Add cheese dip and salsa; cook and stir about 3 minutes or until mixture is heated through. Cook's Tip: Cooking times are for fresh or thoroughly thawed ground beef. Ground beef should be cooked to an internal temperature of 160°F. Color is not a reliable indicator of ground beef doneness. Pour beef mixture into shallow serving dish. Serve with tortilla chips for dipping. Garnish with toppings, if desired.

Beef and Cream Cheese Bagelwich

12 ounces cooked beef (such as steak, roast, pot roast or deli roast beef), thinly sliced
4 thin-style flavored bagels or regular bagels, split
1/3 cup reduced-fat cream cheese
2 tablespoons capers
8 thin slices tomato
4 thin slices red onion, separated into rings
Capers (optional)

Spread cream cheese evenly on cut sides of each bagel half. Evenly sprinkle capers over cream cheese. Evenly top with tomato slices and onion rings; top with beef. Garnish with additional capers, if desired. Serve immediately or refrigerate until ready to eat.

Sprouting With Anticipation

By Amie C. Clark
Mississippi Agriculture
& Forestry Museum - MDAC

The last few weeks have proven rather traumatic for the residents of Mississippi. The violent tornados that tore through the heart of our state left a trail of heartache, pain and sorrow in their wake. There are families whose lives have been turned upside down in the blink of an eye. Homes, businesses and livelihoods have been shattered by forces beyond their control. Amid such destruction, one would find it natural to lose hope. It would be easy to sit, blinded by the rubble, and allow it to crowd out any view of the future.

The people of Mississippi are resilient; they are faithful and strong. It is in the brokenness that their true light shines. Before the winds calmed and the rain stopped, neighbors braved the storm to offer what they could. The community rallied around those who had lost everything, gently picking up the pieces, arranging them to form a new foundation. Farmers know that the ground is broken before the harvest can come. It is in the turmoil of the plowed soil that the precious seeds are nestled. The farmer acknowledges the labor plowing brings but shares the hope found as the rows are turned. He knows the season will not be easy and the summer sun will be hot. But he knows, with diligence, the broken ground will yield a fruitful crop.

This is also true of the broken pieces left across our state. The true spirit and culture of Mississippi has shone through over the past few weeks. They have come pulling trailers filled with supplies, they have come carrying water bottles, and they have arrived with plates of hot food to fill the bellies of those who are working. Each person comes to plant a seed in the broken ground of the victims' lives. Each seed is watered by the generosity, kindness and love of the community that surrounds them. We are all farmers in these uncertain times. Some people farm crops, some people farm livestock, but some people farm hope.

For six decades, patrons have contributed funds in exchange for a magnolia tree planted in honor of or in memory of loved ones. Over the years the program has planted tens of thousands of magnolia trees along state highways. Due to new regulations, the program needed adjustments. Enjoy the beautiful garden created in honor of your loved ones located at the Mississippi Ag and Forestry Museum in Jackson, Mississippi.

The main garden has a formal design incorporating a variety of plants, trees, flora, stone, water, and wood. The gardens will be strategically lighted to enhance the beauty of the design at night. Enjoy the lush landscape encircling the bronze "Working Man" sculpture donated to the Ag Museum in 2011. Relax on the cypress wood seating to enjoy the container gardens and water features framed with cypress shutters. Floral beds offer seasonal beauty outside of the central area.

The goal is to complete the entire project in 2021, honoring the 60th anniversary of Magnolia Gardens, formerly known as Avenue of Magnolias. We thank you for your contributions thus far. In order to complete the gardens, including the Avenue of Magnolias, $150,000.00 in additional funds are needed.

All donations, regardless of amount, will receive a letter acknowledging their donation. Recipients will receive our Magnolia Garden certificate honoring their loved ones.

Taipei Economic & Cultural Office Presents Donation for Tornado Disaster Relief

By Hannah East
Marketing Specialist - MDAC

On April 26, 2023, Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Andy Gipson facilitated a donation presentation to the Mississippi Baptist Disaster Relief from the Taipei Economic and Cultural Office at the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce for the purpose of providing long-term relief for those affected by the March 24 tornadoes.

Director General Robert Lo of the Taipei Economic and Cultural Office in Houston, Texas, presented a significant donation of $50,000 collected from Taiwanese churches in the Houston area to the Mississippi Baptist Disaster Relief. These funds will go toward assisting with long-term relief efforts for those impacted by the tornadoes that stretched across Mississippi in late March.

"I'm honored to facilitate this donation presentation. Today is an example of people of faith and the private sector coming together and it shows what can be accomplished when our leaders work together," said Commissioner Gipson. "Our agency has worked closely with the nation of Taiwan and the Taipei Economic and Cultural Office in the past. On behalf of our great state and, in particular, our rural, farming communities that were devastated by storms last month, I want to thank the Taipei Economic and Cultural Office for this generous donation. I know the Mississippi Baptist Disaster Relief will maximize these funds by directly addressing the greatest needs of those impacted communities."

"I am honored to accept this generous donation on behalf of the Mississippi Baptist Convention Board, our Disaster Relief organization and the hundreds of Mississippians who gather to worship within these affected communities," said Shawn Parker, Executive Director of the Mississippi Baptist Convention Board. "Under Director Hubert Yates, our Disaster Relief volunteers will be able to continue to provide much needed support and aid to our fellow citizens thanks to the Taiwanese people. We are called to be the light of the world and today, the good people of Taiwan have shown that light upon the people of Mississippi."

Commissioner Gipson, Director General Lo and Executive Director Parker were joined by several Mississippi Baptist Convention Board members, as well as Mississippi legislators and senior pastors representing the counties impacted by the recent tornadoes. Mississippi Baptist Disaster Relief will utilize the donation to purchase supplies, clothing and food for storm victims, and provide monetary support to displaced families. View the donation presentation at link.

The Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce has collaborated with the Mississippi Development Authority's Trade Office to strengthen trade relations between Mississippi and Taiwan. Commissioner Gipson visited Taiwan in 2019 where he met with Taiwan President Tsai Ing-wen to promote Mississippi's agriculture commodities. Following the trip, a delegation from Taiwan visited Mississippi as part of Taiwan's Agricultural Trade Goodwill Mission. Commissioner Gipson signed letters of intent with Taiwan on behalf of the state which noted Taiwan's desire to purchase Mississippi soybeans and corn in 2020 and 2021. In addition, Commissioner Gipson accepted 100,000 PPE masks on behalf of the State of Mississippi that Taiwan donated to defend against the COVID-19 pandemic in 2020.

Ag Commissioner Andy Gipson facilitated a donation presentation to the Mississippi Baptist Disaster Relief from the Taipei Economic and Cultural Office at the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce. Trying to Salvage Timber? Call a Forestry Specialist

By Nathan Gregory
MSU Extension Service

Managers of forestland that was damaged or destroyed during the March 24 tornado outbreak in Mississippi now face questions about the short- and long-term future of their property.

Timber loss was recorded in six of the state's counties after aerial surveys conducted by the Mississippi Forestry Commission estimated more than $13 million in losses on 23,155 acres, of which 9,281 acres were on nonindustrial private forestland. Storms also battered Enviva's wood pellet production plant in Amory, suspending operations there.

"Damage from this round of tornadoes definitely seems to be greater than anything I've worked in north Mississippi in the last decade," said Brady Self, an associate Extension professor of forestry with the Mississippi State University Extension Service. "From what I've seen, a lot of the timber downed in these storms is a total loss. Adding to the mix, we already had a multiyear surplus of timber supply that people were having trouble harvesting."

The estimation was based on average quarterly market prices by the ton for pine and hardwood pulpwood, as well as pine and hardwood sawtimber. The quarterly prices at the time of the report were $26.58 per ton for pine sawtimber and $33.73 per ton for hardwood sawtimber. The two counties suffering the most timber value loss were Monroe County with nearly $6.1 million and Carroll County at nearly $5.5 million.

"While acreage is simply acreage, value considers current market value. Monetarily speaking, $10,000 worth of sawtimber a decade ago would have included fewer trees than $10,000 worth in sawtimber now," Self said. "Calculations using our current lower values for products doesn't really paint an accurate picture. This is especially true for pine stumpage."

Many of the questions Self and other MSU Extension timber specialists are asked after tornadoes involve potential federal assistance, tree health and determining what can be salvaged.

"Just because downed timber looks sound does not mean it actually is," he said. "Depending on multiple factors, downed wood may be perfectly fine, or it may be completely worthless due to factors such as ring shake (internal cracking due to bending), splitting, location of breakage and other factors like drying and insect and fungal damage as time goes on."

"A logger will not come and haul away unprofitable wood, period,"

Damage from a March 24 tornado totaled nearly 5,000 forested acres in Monroe County, an estimated $6 million in losses for landowners there. (Photo by MSU Extension Service/Nathan Gregory)

Self added. "Aside from the nature of the damage, remember that logging equipment is designed to cut standing, not fallen trees. Couple that with high insurance costs associated with hiring saw hands, and logging contractors have a tough go of it when salvaging timber."

Mississippi state forester Russell Bozeman said that, in many of the storm-damaged areas, forest industry analysis data show a high growth-to-drain ratio, meaning that more timber is being grown than harvested.

"Because of the abundance of timber, many private nonindustrial forest landowners face daily challenges of finding loggers and mill access," he said. "The salvage must be completed in a timely manner, and often finding a logger who is willing to complete this type of harvest and who has mill access can be a challenge. It speaks to the need to have healthy timber markets that can utilize thinning and damaged timber in a timely manner."

Landowners with profitable timber for a logger to salvage can ask around for contact information for any local logging contractors, or they can call the Mississippi Forestry Association for a list of contractors who might be able to help. MSU Extension also has multiple publications available that detail topics ranging from chainsaw and debris clearing safety to timber casualty loss tax considerations.

"Extension county agents and forestry specialists can go to look at a property and offer technical advice on whether a landowner should consider a tract as manageable or something that they should regenerate," Self said.

MSU Extension Publication 2619, "Forestry Income Tax Series: Frequently Asked Questions about Timber Casualty Losses," is available online at <https://shorturl.at/INUW7>. "Thinning to Mitigate Extreme-Weather Risks," MSU Extension Publication 3823, can be found at <https://rb.gy/gugvm>.
