There's More to Our Farmers Markets

By Jared Vardaman
Multimedia Coordinator - MDAC

For some, shopping at a local farmers market means picking up their week's supply of fresh, home-grown produce and browsing the vast array of products these markets offer. For some, it's a social event! It is the highlight of their week seeing familiar faces or meeting new friends with common goals and interests. But for others, farmers markets are a family affair. It is a place for families to come together and learn about agriculture, commerce, life, and hard work. It is a place for family businesses to share their products with their community, benefitting not only the seller but the Mississippi economy as a whole. Whether a person is a grower or consumer, these markets are so much more than just a place to buy produce.

The word "local" makes all the difference when shopping for fresh food for your family. Farmers markets are the go-to place for direct-to-consumer produce. In fact, of the $2.9 billion of direct-to-consumer sales reported by USDA, farmers market were responsible for $1.7 billion. With numerous farmers markets around Mississippi, our state is in no short supply of fresh, delicious, and local produce.

To consumers, local means fresh, and fresh means nutritious. Vegetables transported hundreds of miles contain less of the nutrient content of locally, grown produce.

Glyen Holmes is a Holmes County farmer with decades of experience in local produce transportation. "The difference between locally-grown produce and the produce that you ship in is that the nutritional value drops when you ship. The closer you can get it home, the faster you can get it to the consumer, the nutritional value rises because you don't have to freeze it or preserve it in any way. It's all natural," said Holmes.

On average, vegetables travel fewer than 50 miles to local farmers markets, meaning that the health benefits remain intact when sold to and cooked by consumers.

Additionally, these markets are hubs for people of all walks of life to convene together and enjoy each other's company while also impacting the economy of the community. Many markets around the state that have been established for years have amassed a core group of individuals who shop and support the markets routinely. These "regulars" are familiar with the culture of the market and are some of the biggest encouragers to not only vendors, but to new guests. There's no limit of time to becoming a regular at one of these great markets, it just takes the first step of going!

Family-owned farms are a huge part of the impact of Mississippi's farmers markets. Emily Stovall and her husband Aaron own Dry Bottom Farms in Weir, Miss. "Aaron and I enjoy selling at farmers markets because of the atmosphere we are met with each time we attend. The customers at farmers markets are eager to buy locally grown produce, and they enjoy even more that they get to support a local farm family when they do so. The monetary and physical support we receive at farmers markets is integral to what we do as a small, family-owned farm," said Stovall.

Whether they're open-air, enclosed, or just a group of booths in a parking lot, Mississippi farmers markets are much more than just a place to sell vegetables. While they positively impact our state's economy, they are influencing something much more: the future. Markets are a great way for families to educate their children on the benefits of fresh fruits and vegetables and establish a foundation for healthy lifestyles. Conversely, children who are taught the benefits of the hard work it took to raise those vegetables are taught work ethic and determination. These factors can leave a major impression on families for generations to come.

If you are in the Jackson area, the Mississippi Farmers Market is the premier one-stop-shop for Mississippi goods, products, and produce. Celebrating 17 years, the MFM is hosting its annual Summer Kickoff on June 3, 2023. There will be Genuine MS® samples, complimentary popcorn, face-painting, and a host of fun for the entire family!

Farmers Market Pasta Salad

2 cups halved baby heirloom tomatoes
2 small zucchini, thinly sliced into half moons
1 small red bell pepper, cut into thin strips
1 cup fresh corn kernels
1 cup diced firm, ripe fresh peaches (about 2 medium)
1/2 cup thinly sliced green onions
1 Parmesan Vinaigrette
2 (8-oz.) package penne pasta*
1/3 cups shredded smoked chicken (about 10 oz.)
1/3 cup torn fresh basil
cup torn fresh cilantro

Toss together first 7 ingredients in a large bowl, and let stand 10 minutes. Meanwhile, prepare pasta according to package directions. Add hot cooked pasta and chicken to tomato mixture; toss gently to coat. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Transfer to a serving platter, and top with basil and cilantro. *1 (20-oz.) package refrigerated cheese-filled tortellini may be substituted.

Fried Green Tomatoes

1 egg, lightly beaten
1/2 cup all-purpose flour, divided
1/2 cup buttermilk
1/2 cup cornmeal
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
3 green tomatoes, cut into 1/3-inch slices
Vegetable oil

Mix together egg and buttermilk; set aside. Combine 1/4 cup all-purpose flour, cornmeal, 1 teaspoon salt, and pepper in a shallow bowl or pan. Dredge tomato slices in remaining 1/4 cup flour; dip in egg mixture, and dredge in cornmeal mixture. Pour oil to a depth of 1/4 to 1/2 inch in a large cast-iron skillet; heat to 375°F. Drop tomatoes, in batches, into hot oil, and cook 2 minutes on each side or until golden. Drain on paper towels or a rack. Sprinkle hot tomatoes with salt.

Easy Squash Casserole

3 pounds yellow squash, sliced
5 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
1 small onion, chopped (about 1/2 cup)
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
2 large eggs, lightly beaten
1/4 cup mayonnaise
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
20 round buttery crackers, crushed (about 3/4 cup)

Cook squash in boiling water to cover in a large skillet 8 to 10 minutes or just until tender. Drain well; gently press between paper towels. Melt 4 tablespoons butter in skillet over medium-high heat; add onion, and sauté 5 minutes or until tender. Remove skillet from heat; stir in squash, cheese, and next 4 ingredients. Spoon mixture into a lightly greased 11- x 7-inch baking dish. Melt remaining 1 tablespoon butter. Stir together melted butter and crushed crackers; sprinkle evenly over top of casserole. Bake at 350°F for 30 to 35 minutes or until set.

Easy Blackberry Cobbler

4 cups fresh blackberries
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 large egg
1 cup sugar
1 cup all-purpose flour
6 tablespoons butter, melted
Whipped cream (optional)
Garnish: fresh mint sprig

Preheat oven to 375°F. Place blackberries in a lightly greased 8-inch square baking dish; sprinkle with lemon juice. Stir together egg, sugar, and flour in a medium bowl until mixture resembles coarse meal. Sprinkle over fruit. Drizzle melted butter over topping. Bake at 375°F for 35 minutes or until lightly browned and bubbly. Let stand 10 minutes. Serve warm with whipped cream, if desired. Garnish with fresh mint sprig, if desired. For a neat presentation, bake for the same amount of time in 6 (8-oz.) ramekins on an aluminum foil-lined baking sheet.

Parmesan Corn Pudding

2 (12-oz.) packages frozen white shoepeg corn, thawed and divided
1/3 cup sugar
1/4 cup all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons plain yellow cornmeal
1/2 teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons butter, melted
1 1/2 cups milk
4 large eggs
2 tablespoons chopped fresh chives
1/2 cup (2 oz.) shredded Parmesan cheese
Garnish: chopped fresh chives

Preheat oven to 350°. Place 1 package of corn and next 7 ingredients (in order listed) in a large food processor. Process until smooth, stopping to scrape down sides. Transfer mixture to a large bowl; stir in chives and remaining corn. Pour mixture into a lightly greased 2 quart baking dish; sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 350° for 40 to 45 minutes or until set. Garnish, if desired.

US Secretary of Agriculture Announces New Opportunities In Store for Mississippi

US Secretary of Agriculture Tom Vilsack visited the Mississippi Farmers Market on May 12 discussing the recently announced USDA Delta Regional Food Business Center and upcoming infrastructure opportunities for the State of Mississippi. Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Andy Gipson welcomed Secretary Vilsack and participated in a stakeholder discussion on public and private partnerships strengthening food supply chain infrastructure through USDA Regional Food Business Centers.

State's Beef Cattle Industry Faces High Production Costs

By Bonnie Coblenz

Mississippi cattle operations must constantly improve efficiency to remain profitable, as rising production costs are decreasing the benefit of high market prices.

Brandi Karisch, beef specialist with the Mississippi State University Extension Service, said beef production is a significant component of the state's agricultural economy, with a total estimated value of $318 million in 2022.

"Mississippi producers face similar challenges to those in many other states, as costs for feed, fuel and fertilizer for pastures continue to be high or rise," Karisch said.

Rocky Lemus, Extension forage specialist, said the state's beef industry is supported by the 2.6 million acres of forage production across the state, including about 600,000 acres in hay production.

"Although forage should be the foundation of livestock production, some limitations such as limited rotational grazing and farm forage diversification require hay supplementation for 90 to 110 days in the year," Lemus said.

This demand from the beef cattle industry puts pressures on the state's pastures to provide sufficient, high-quality forage. Lemus said producers can reduce the need for supplementation if they implement more efficient rotational grazing systems rather than overgrazing and allowing weeds to become a barrier to forage utilization and return.

"Pasture cost has increased by 20% to 30% in the last five years due to the increase in fertilizer costs," Lemus said. "We cannot afford to continue adding fertilizers based on guesses. Start with a soil sample to determine pH and nutrient levels, and add fertilizer based on those recommendations."

"This year, we are seeing a decline in fertilizer prices, and producers should take advantage of this cost reduction to develop a nutrient management plan that is efficient and sustainable," he said.

The MSU Forage Extension Program works closely with county Extension offices across the state to provide tools and recommendations for producers.

"Our goals and objectives are to help producers to be more sustainable by developing grazing and nutrient management plans that could enhance forage quality and production," Lemus said.

The hard freeze of December and the freeze in early March impacted cool-season annual grasses, such as oats, and caused a delay in the opportunity to graze annual ryegrass.

"We probably lost four to six weeks of grazing potential due to these conditions," Lemus said. "We predict lower hay yield this summer season and the hay inventory to remain tight due to these conditions."

Mississippi has just under 16,000 individual beef cattle operations in the state. Karisch said that, as of January 1, these producers had 860,000 head of cattle, including 478,000 beef cows and 91,000 beef cow replacements. Scott, Jones, Tate, Hinds and Walthall counties lead the state with the number of beef cattle.

State cattle producers are heavily involved in stocker cattle production, raising more than 400,000 head of stocker cattle in the state each year.

"We have noted a decline in cattle numbers the past few years due to many factors, and this is reflected in the decreased number of beef cows found this year compared to last," Karisch said.

There is a large and growing group of consumers who seek locally raised beef and are willing to pay a premium for meat products from a known source. Karisch said farmers markets and social media groups are great ways to connect with local farmers and learn where food comes from.

"Cattle producers offer locally raised beef in all parts of the state," she said. "There are a multitude of options for consumers to buy a half or whole beef or bundles and individual cuts."

"Many producers are seeking out USDA-inspected facilities with individual labels that allow them to market to consumers who might not have the freezer space or cash flow for purchasing a whole or half beef," Karisch said.

The Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce offers resources through the Genuine MS® program that allows consumers to find cattle producers who have their farms listed through that program.

"Cattle producers love to share their story of how that beef was grown and raised on their farm, and I encourage consumers to seek them out and enjoy locally raised beef," Karisch said.

MSU Extension supports the beef cattle industry by providing science-based solutions to cattle producers in Mississippi through educational workshops, online resources and publications, and one-on-one assistance.

"Our goal is to serve as a knowledge resource for every level of producer, from those just getting started in the cattle industry to the producer who has owned cattle for 60 years," she said.
