Preserving the Value of Hay through Proper Storage

By Rocky Lemus, PhD
Extension Forage Specialist
Mississippi State University

Hay made from the most productive warm-season grasses (e.g. bermudagrass) and fertilized properly can still result in suboptimal forage if it is not properly stored. It is important to remember that one of the main purposes of haymaking is to produce a cost-effective and nutritional feed for livestock and reduce any cost of supplementation. The cost of making bad hay will not be different than making good hay. The average cost of making hay can reach up $92.54/ton of hay produced (Figure 1) and it could increase if hay is not stored properly.

Most storage losses are related to moisture content at the time of baling. Optimum moisture for baling can range from 15% to 20% depending on the type of forage of species and the type and size of bale being made. Baling at moisture levels lower than 15% will result in greater harvesting losses because leaf losses increase as moisture content decreases. On the other hand, storing hay at moisture levels greater than 20% can result in molding and heating, which translate into hay discoloration and greater dry matter and nutrient losses.

All bales made at moisture content above 15% will undergo some increase in temperature in the first two to three weeks post-baling. This change in temperature is known as "sweating" or "going through sweat," and this is due to the final stage of plant and microbial respiration. This increase in temperature can cause spontaneous combustion if bales are stored too tight or in close environments.

When storing hay in a barn or outdoors, do not stack more than 5 tiers high before the hay has gone through the sweating process. After the sweat when temperatures lower, more tiers can be added to the stack without fire danger. Fire danger usually increase when bales reaches temperatures above 150° F. Heating bales must be moved to prevent the stack or barn from burning. Check the bale moisture content by using a hay moisture probe to determine the potential for greater respiration. To measure the bale temperature, use a thermometer that can be pushed at least 12 inches into the bales, check the temperature of at least 20 different bales, and monitor each daily until the sweat period is over.

Moisture is the most aggressive and destructive enemy once the hay is stored. Larger bales have more volume per unit of surface area exposed to the elements. As bale size and density increases, proper baling moisture is more critical to prevent heating and deterioration in quality.

value are critical. Storing bales outside on the ground without covers is the cheapest method of storage but has the greatest potential for weathering losses, especially under extended storage periods.

Large round bales without cover should be stored end-to-end in single rows in a north-south orientation with space between the bales to facilitate good air circulation and drying. If the hay is stored outdoors, then it should always be kept off the ground (e.g. on tires, pallets, gravel) which are covered with tarps or plastic.

Storage losses can be reduced by two-thirds with indoor storage. The barn roof must be in good shape to keep rain off the hay. If moisture

Storing hay under trees is improper hay storage. The worst places to store hay are in an area where water collects or under trees. Both of these places cause hay to stay wet for an extended period, decrease the quality of the hay, and increase the amount of hay loss.

All storage sites, regardless of the type of storage, should be well drained. The idea is to stop movement of soil moisture into the stored bales. Selecting the most appropriate type of storage depends on the end-use for the forage, the specific livestock feeding situation, and the needs of the producer. Bales should not be left to lie in the field after baling for an extended period of time (more than 4 weeks).

In Mississippi, round bales are a common method of handling and storing dry forages. Proper storage facilities to preserve hay quality and content at baling is too high, the entire bale stack can become a block of mold spores unfit for livestock consumption and a potential fire hazard.

It would be nice if we could just say that one option is better than the rest, but each individual livestock operation should analyze which hay storage is a better option and make a decision based on cost and labor. Temporary storage options can be effective and include low-cost frame structures with fabric covers, reusable tarps, or bale sleeves.

Prevent hay fires by checking moisture content prior to baling and storing in dry conditions. Spontaneous combustion is always a possibility with stored hay, particularly if the hay was baled with high moisture content. Do not store hay with moisture content above 30%.

WHOLE WHEAT BUTTERMILK PANCAKES

- 2 cups white whole wheat flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/3 cup organic sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt
- 2 1/2 cups buttermilk
- 2 large eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 teaspoon grated orange zest
- 2 tablespoons melted butter

Whisk the dry ingredients together in a large bowl until well combined. In another bowl, whisk the eggs, and then whisk in the remaining wet ingredients. Gradually pour the wet ingredients over the dry ingredients as you whisk them together until just combined. Do not over mix. Bring a skillet to a medium-high heat. Lightly butter the pan and pour 1/4 cup of batter into the pan, rolling it around a bit if you like your pancakes on the thinner side. Allow the edges to brown lightly and then flip to cook the other side.

WHOLE GRAIN BANANA BREAD

- 1/3 cup unsalted butter, softened at room temperature
- 1/4 cup honey
- 1/4 cup packed natural brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 2 eggs
- 1 1/2 cups mashed over-ripe bananas
- 1 3/4 cups white whole wheat flour
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/4 cup chopped walnuts
- 1/2 cup dark chocolate chips, preferably 60% cocoa

Preheat the oven to 325°. Lightly grease a 9x5-inch loaf pan with butter. Combine flour, cinnamon, and salt in a bowl; whisk and set aside. In another large bowl, combine butter, honey, and sugar and beat for two minutes. Add the eggs and lightly beat until just combined. Mix in bananas and vanilla; do not over mix. Gradually beat in the flour mixture in thirds. Dilute baking soda in 1/4 cup hot (not boiling) water, and beat into batter. Stir in, by hand, the chocolate chips and chopped nuts. Pour the batter into the pan and bake at 325° for 52 minutes (test for doneness, but do not over bake as it may dry out the bread). Remove from pan and place on a wire rack to cool for about 30 minutes for clean slices. Eat it warm if it does not matter!

TURKEY MEATLOAF WITH ROASTED TOMATOES

Turkey Loaf:

- 1 pound ground turkey
- 2 tablespoons uncooked bulgar wheat
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1/2 medium yellow onion, chopped
- 3 large cloves garlic, minced
- 1 large egg
- 1/3 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 tablespoons milk
- 1 tablespoon tomato paste
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
- 1 teaspoon kosher salt
- Fresh ground black pepper, to taste
- 1/2 teaspoon ground chipotle pepper (optional, but worth it)

Roasted Tomatoes:

- 4 cups cherry or grape tomatoes
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- Kosher salt
- Fresh ground black pepper, to taste
- 1/4 cup fresh basil, thinly sliced

Bring 1/2 cup water to a boil in a small pot and then add the bulgar wheat. Stir and remove from heat. Cover the pot and allow to rest for 30 minutes; strain excess water. Preheat oven to 350°. Lightly oil a loaf pan. Sauté the onion and garlic in the olive oil over a medium heat for about 5 minutes. Transfer to a large bowl and add bulgar wheat and all remaining turkey loaf ingredients. Mix thoroughly and transfer into the loaf pan; level the loaf in the pan. Bake loaf for one hour. The center should measure 170° when ready. When removing the loaf from the oven, raise the temperature to 400°. Set the loaf aside to rest for 15 minutes. In a medium bowl, toss the tomatoes in 2 tablespoons olive oil until evenly coated. Place on a baking sheet and sprinkle with kosher salt and black pepper. Roast for 10-15 minutes, until tomatoes reach desired tenderness. Garnish tomatoes with sliced basil and serve.

USDA Farm Service Agency Offers Assistance To Mississippi Farmers Affected By Tornado

By Latrice Hill
Public Relations
& Outreach Specialist, USDA

Emergency assistance for eligible and qualifying producers affected by the April 24 tornado is now available through the Farm Service Agency (FSA), according to Michael R. Sullivan, Mississippi FSA State Executive Director.

"The Emergency Conservation Program (ECP) provides funding to assist affected farmers and producers in their efforts to remove debris from farmland and restore fences," Sullivan said.

The program is administered by FSA's state and county committees. Locally-elected county committees are authorized to implement ECP for all disasters except drought, which is authorized at the national office of FSA. Eligible producers will receive cost-share assistance of up to 75 percent of the cost of the approved practice. The two approved practices are: debris removal on farmland and restoring fencing.

For a producer's land to be eligible, the disaster must create new conservation problems that, if untreated, would impair or endanger the land and affect its productive capacity. Conservation problems existing prior to the applicable disaster are ineligible for ECP assistance.

According to Sullivan, six FSA county offices have been given the authority to implement the program: Attala, Choctaw, Holmes, Monroe, Oktibbeha and Yazoo. Producers in these counties may visit their local FSA Office and sign up.

FSA offers additional programs to help farmers and ranchers recover from natural disasters. The Emergency Farm Loan Program provides loans to cover losses for designated disasters. The loans are made to qualified farmers who cannot obtain credit from other lenders in the local area. A Presidential or Administrative Declaration on assistance for physical losses will have to be made and issued before applications can be taken. A declaration request has been submitted and more information will be announced at a later date once a designation has been issued.

The Livestock Indemnity Program provides assistance to producers for livestock deaths that result from natural disaster. The program provides benefits to livestock producers for livestock deaths in excess of normal mortality caused by adverse weather. Farmers are encouraged to contact the local office for detailed information.

"USDA is committed to assisting in the recovery from this disaster that has affected so many of our farmers," Sullivan said.

Assistance Needed For MS Cattlemen In Wake of Devastating Weather

Mississippi Commissioner of Agriculture, Lester Spell and Sammy Blossom of the Mississippi Cattlemen's Association are asking the public for donations in the form of fencing supplies to assist Mississippi cattlemen who received significant damage due to the recent storms that stretched across the State of Mississippi.

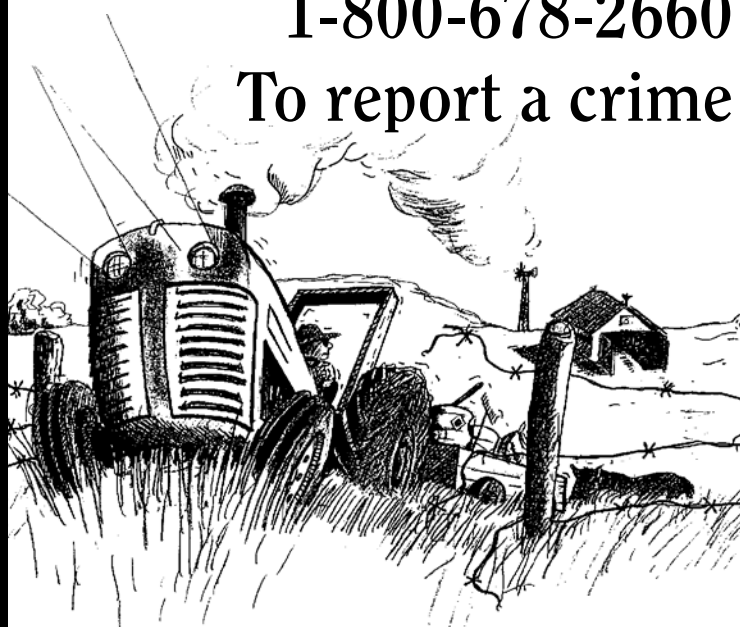

Damages from the April 24th tornado to several Mississippi counties have left many livestock producers with significant damage to fences, gates, and other enclosures for livestock. Fencing supplies and any monetary donations would be a tremendous help in helping affected farms recover and move forward during this difficult time.

Fencing supplies can be coordinated for drop off at the Mississippi State Fairgrounds, contact 601-359-1158, or coordinated directly through the Mississippi Cattlemen's Association, at 601-354-8951, in order to reach the affected areas.

Monetary contributions for cattlemen affected by the recent weather can be made to the Mississippi Cattlemen's Foundation, 680 Monroe Street, Jackson, MS 39202. The Foundation is a 501c3 organization.

ADVERTISING GUIDELINES

The Mississippi Market Bulletin is published on the 1st and 15th of each month by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce. The Mississippi Market Bulletin is an important way for the Department to disseminate news and information about issues affecting Mississippi's agriculture industry and the Department's operations.

Through its classified advertising section, the Bulletin provides a forum for Mississippi residents to buy and sell agricultural related items while also giving statewide exposure to small farmers who might not normally have the economic resources for such widespread advertising. The Bulletin does not publish commercial or display ads and all items offered for sale must have been produced, raised, grown or operated on the seller's property. Businesses, corporations, dealerships, brokers or other commercial enterprises are not allowed to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin.

Advertising rules and guidelines have been established for the Mississippi Market Bulletin in order to comply with regulations enforced by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce and to maintain the objectives of the publication. The staff of the Mississippi Market Bulletin reserves the right to edit, revise or reject any advertisement.

The Mississippi Market Bulletin assumes no responsibility for any notice appearing in the Bulletin nor for any transaction resulting from published notices. Advertisers are cautioned that it is against the law to misrepresent any product offered for sale in public notices or advertisements carried in any publication that is delivered by the United States Postal Service.

- In order to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin you must be a subscriber. To place an ad, you must include your name, mailing address and account number that the subscription is listed under on each ad that you submit (this information will not be printed). Each subscriber is allowed to advertise two ads in the Bulletin, listing one ad per category.
- All listings must be agriculture related (raised, grown, produced or operated on your farm). At the top of your ad, write the category that the ad should be listed under. We reserve the right to edit, revise or reject each ad. Please print or type your ad.
- There is a 30-word limit for classified advertisements, this includes: price (on the item you are selling), your city, county and telephone number or name and complete address must be included in the ad if you do not list a telephone number. Ads cannot be held over from one issue to another. You must submit them for each issue.
- Out-of-state residents are not eligible to advertise with the following exceptions: Out-of-state ads are allowed in the "Wanting To Buy" category. Out-of-state ads are allowed for individuals owning farm property within the state that is being offered for sale (consisting of 10 acres or more).

ADVERTISING DEADLINE DATES

JUNE 1 ISSUE.....DEADLINE MON. MAY. 17, 2010 • 12:00 NOON

JUNE 15 ISSUE.....DEADLINE FRI. MAY . 28, 2010 • 12:00 NOON

You must submit your ad for each issue. We do not hold ads over for multiple insertion.

ADVERTISEMENT SUBMISSION FORM

In order to advertise you must be a subscriber.

All classified ads must be 30 words or less.

We cannot run items for sale without a price.

April 24 Storms Helped Most Fields

By Linda Breazeale
MSU Ag Communications

Storms that whipped through Mississippi on April 24 dumped rain in many fields needing moisture to continue spring planting, and they caused minimal damage to the young crops.

Ernie Flint, area agronomic agent with Mississippi State University's Extension Service, said dry conditions had forced farmers to suspend planting.

"We needed rain, and some fields got 2.5 to 3 inches. Some areas, especially farther south, got much less," Flint said. "At this point, young corn would only have some superficial damage from hail and wind. Soybeans could have been hurt more, but I haven't heard any reports of damaged soybeans yet."

Flint said the Big Black River is overflowing onto some corn fields, but he hopes only for a brief period.

"Most of the storm went north of the Yazoo County wheat fields.

It will help that wheat is not actively heading yet because it is not top heavy," he said. "Farmers are going to be dealing with property damage more than crop damage."

Yazoo County Extension Director Phillip "Bubba" Vandever Jr. said he thinks the tornado may have stayed on the ground for 40 miles across the county. Several agricultural buildings and shops were damaged or destroyed.

"The bulk of the damage is not in a row-crop area, but in pastures across rolling hills," Vandever said. "There is a lot of tree damage and fence damage. Farmers are still working to locate all their livestock. I know of damage to an electric fence around a cow pasture, but those cows seem to be staying in place 'on the honor system' until repairs can be made."

Jerry Singleton, Extension area agent based in Leflore County, said there is some minor damage in and around Leflore County, but the storms were more beneficial than detrimental.

"We got 3 to 4.5 inches across the central Delta, and we needed it," Singleton said. "It came hard and fast, so we had some gullies washed into turn rows, but we were needing some water in the furrows."

Extension area agent Dennis Reginelli is based in Noxubee County, where more than 5 inches of rain fell in some places and less than an inch in others. He said some hail was reported but no crop damage.

"We needed to get moisture levels back up in fields, but with more rains predicted, it could take a while for farmers to get back to planting," he said.

Timber Owners May Claim Tornado Losses

Some Mississippi forest landowners with timber destroyed by the April 24 tornado may be eligible to claim a casualty loss.

Debbie Gaddis, Mississippi State University Extension Service forestry professor, said the tornado destroyed many privately owned forestlands in the state. Those owners who can claim a casualty loss will receive a deduction based on the loss of fair market value or their basis in the asset, whichever is less.

"Basis is the book value of an asset," Gaddis said. "When a forest is acquired, it has an initial basis, which is determined by how the herited, given as a gift, purchased or planted as an investment.

"The initial basis is adjusted over time as timber is sold or as costs are incurred that are not recovered through tax deductions or special incentives," Gaddis said. "The current basis in timber is called an adjusted basis."

"The bottom line for casualty loss deductions of timber is that if the landowner has a basis in the timber, he may deduct the loss in fair market value of the timber or the basis, whichever is less. If that person has no basis in timber, then there is no deductible loss. If there is a basis which has not been determined, then a consulting forester may be able to determine it by a retroactive property is acquired. For example, when timberland is inherited, an appraisal is used to determine the fair market value of timber. This value is recorded and becomes the timber basis."

"When the timber is sold, the part of the basis that applies to that sale is subtracted from the gross sales proceeds, along with sales expenses, to determine net taxable gain. It is also used to determine the amount of casualty loss that can be claimed after a catastrophic event," she said.

Different rules are used to determine the basis for timber that is inbasis determination."

Gaddis said landowners who take a casualty loss deduction for timber are required to salvage the timber, if possible. If the salvage results in a gain, the gain is taxable as a long- or short-term capital gain, depending on how long the timber has been owned. Landowners can reinvest gains from a casualty loss in like-kind replacement property and avoid being taxed on the gain.

"There are very specific Internal Revenue Service regulations that must be followed to replace property," Gaddis said.

Tornado Disaster Assistance

Due to damages and losses caused by tornadoes that occurred during the period of April 24, 2010.

In the affected counties, loans are available for small agricultural cooperatives, farmers, ranchers, and aquaculture operators to assist with cash flow, working capital, and production and property losses (excluding primary residence).
