Juicy Watermelons Beat Summer's Heat

By Keri Collins Lewis
MSU Extension Service

As summer temperatures soar, Mississippi's sweet watermelon crop is satisfying both growers and consumers.

"Everyone wants watermelon, from the beginning of harvest in June right up until the Fourth of July, when demand peaks for holiday picnics," said Dr. Rick Snyder, a vegetable specialist with the Mississippi State University Extension Service and Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station. "Mississippi has an ideal climate for many vegetables, and watermelons are one of those that thrive in the heat. They need a steady supply of water, but ideally the last few days before harvest will be dry so the sugar content will be high.

Most Mississippi watermelons are sold locally at roadside stands, farmers markets and tailgate operations. The demand for watermelons is always high for the Fourth of July.

Wait a minute – watermelons are a vegetable?

Snyder said watermelons could be classified as either fruit or vegetable, depending on the definition used. They are a fruit because they contain seeds and are the reproductive organs of the plants. They are a vegetable because they are from the cucurbit family; closely related to cucumbers, muskmelons, gourds and squash; and planted and harvested like vegetable crops.

Whether they are fruits or vegetables, watermelons are always high demand, which is good news for the state's producers.

"Watermelons are about 92 percent water, and a lack of water while the melons are filling out will result in misshapen produce, with one bulbous end and one narrow end," Snyder said. "A quality watermelon will be heavy for its size and uniform in shape."

Snyder explained how consumers can tell when a watermelon is ripe.

"You can tune your ear to the watermelons," he said. "I will usually select five watermelons and slap them with my fingers, and I take the one with the lowest pitch – you're looking for a low, hollow sound like it has a big empty stomach. We're looking for a bass, not a soprano."

Gardeners and growers have two more ways to determine ripeness.

"Look at the tendril or curl on the vine closest to the melon that you're checking for maturity," Snyder said. "If that tendril is dry, brown or black, it's an indication that it's ready. If it's green, it is probably not ripe."

"The third test is the ground spot, the part of the watermelon that is in contact with the ground. Roll the watermelon over -- careful not to break the attachment to the vine. If it's still green or greenish yellow, it's not ready. If it's yellow, bright yellow or creamy yellow it's probably ready," Snyder said.

If it is not ready to harvest, Snyder said gardeners should roll it back onto the existing ground spot.

For home gardeners who wish they had planted watermelon, it's not too late, said Dr. Wayne Porter, Regional Extension Coordinator & Associate Extension Professor with the Mississippi State University Extension Service in Biloxi.

"Why not plant some now for Labor Day? Typically you would plant early to mid-April, but it's possible to start now. I recommend the old standard varieties -- 'Jubilee' and 'Crimson Sweet' are still good choices," Porter said.

The 39th annual Mississippi Watermelon Festival will be July 14 and 15 in Mize, a small town in southwest Smith County, which includes watermelon eating contest, seed spitting contest, and the biggest watermelon contest. It's a time to eat all the watermelon you can handle, compete in watermelon games, contests, and enjoy the warm days of summer. John Conlee will be in concert Saturday night. For more festival information call (877) 790-9722 or visit www.mswatermelonfestival.com.

Wonderful Watermelon!

Watermelon Crabcakes

8 ounces cooked, shelled and picked over crabmeat, drained
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1 tablespoon mayonnaise
1/2 cup seasoned breadcrumbs
1/4 cup drained sweet pickle relish
3 tablespoons butter for frying
1 cup minced and drained watermelon
1/2 cup bottled chili sauce

In a bowl, mix the crab, eggs, mayonnaise, breadcrumbs and sweet pickle relish. Heat a generous amount of butter (you may use a combination of canola oil and butter if desired) in a 10-to-12-inch sauté pan over medium high heat. Using two teaspoons as tools, drop small dollops (about one teaspoon full) of the crab mixture into the butter and fry, turning once, until golden brown on each side. Fry the puffs in batches keeping them warm on a baking sheet in the oven as they come out of the pan. Mix together the watermelon and chili sauce and serve with crabcakes for dipping.

Watermelon Oat Crumble

2 cups rolled or quick cook oats
1/2 cup light brown sugar
1/8 cup honey
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup chopped pecans
6 cups watermelon balls

Toss the oats, sugar, honey, cinnamon and pecans until mixed well. Spread into an even layer on a parchment paper-lined cookie sheet. Bake in preheated 300 degree oven until golden brown. Turn off oven leaving the tray in for an additional 10-15 minutes. Remove and cool. Break into crumbles. Arrange the watermelon balls in six to eight small bowls or wide stemmed glasses and top with the oat crumbles.

Sweet Potato Soufflé with Watermelon Fig Sauce

6 medium sweet potatoes
1/2 cup butter at room temperature
1/2 cup cream at room temperature
1/2 teaspoon allspice
1 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup maple syrup
4 eggs
2 cups chopped watermelon flesh
1 cup diced figs
Juice of 1 lime

Bake the sweet potatoes in a pre-heated 325 degree oven until soft. Remove from oven and while still hot, carefully scoop the sweet potato flesh into a heatproof mixing bowl, and blend with the butter, cream, allspice, brown sugar and maple syrup until smooth. Blend in the eggs one at a time. Place the pudding in a baking dish and bake in preheated 325 degree oven until golden brown and puffy; about 35 minutes. Toss together the watermelon, figs and lime juice and serve with soufflé.

Watermelon Waldorf Salad

2 cups cubed watermelon (about 1/2-inch cubes)
1/2 cup sliced celery
1/2 cup seedless red grape halves
Dash of salt
1/4 cup Greek yogurt
2 tablespoons sliced almonds, toasted

Stir together watermelon, celery, and grapes in bowl. Just before serving, stir salt into yogurt for dressing. If necessary, add a little water to yogurt to lighten the thickness. Pour mixture over fruit and stir until coated. Sprinkle with almonds.

Watermelon Pineapple Salsa

2 cups watermelon, diced, about 1/3-inch
2 cups pineapple, diced, about 1/3-inch
1/2 cup red onion, diced, about 1/3-inch
3 tablespoons cilantro, chopped
1 diced jalapeno pepper
1/4 cup lemon juice
Dash Tabasco sauce to taste
Dash salt and pepper to taste
Dash granulated sugar, optional, depending on sweetness of fruit

Combine watermelon, pineapple, onion, cilantro and jalapeno pepper. Add lemon juice and season to taste with Tabasco sauce, pepper and salt. If additional sweetness is desired, add a small amount of sugar to taste. Cover and refrigerate until chilled.

Observe Precautions in Tick Environments

By Andrew L. Smith
MSU Extension Service

While hunting, working in the yard or garden, taking early morning walks or hikes, or just cruising around the property on all-terrain vehicles, people are likely to pick up ticks in some fashion.

Ticks are typically found in areas of dense vegetation and along game or human trails. Contrary to popular belief, they do not typically live in trees.

Mississippi is home to about 19 tick species, but five of them are the most frequently encountered: the deer tick, lone star tick, Gulf Coast tick, American dog tick and brown dog tick. The brown dog tick does not typically host/feed on humans and is not to be confused with the American dog tick.

Larval ticks, known as seed ticks, are of particular concern because they are the most likely to harbor disease and are so small that they are sometimes barely visible to the naked eye. They usually come in large numbers, so if you find one or two on you, then there is a good chance there are more. It's not unusual for people to have 100 or more seed ticks on them. Those kind of numbers will drastically increase your chances of contracting a tick-borne illness.

Among the illnesses and diseases transmitted by ticks, the most common are ehrlichiosis, anaplasmosis, tularemia, tick paralysis, Lyme disease and Rocky Mountain spotted fever. Additionally, a recently discovered tick-related problem is the Alpha-gal allergy, which can make a person allergic to red meat from mammals. This allergy can last for years, which would be very inconvenient for most Mississippians.

Ticks are among the longest living insect-like species; some live for several years. So, treating your yard or property routinely each year is important if you want to spend less time with ticks.

To reduce your interaction with ticks, treat clothing as necessary with repellants such as permethrin when preparing to spend extended time outdoors. When outdoors, don't wear baggy clothing. Loose-fitting clothes provides more surface area for ticks to attach onto, increasing your contact with the surrounding vegetation and making the pests harder to spot when they get on you.

Treat pets with prescribed antitick medication each spring via your local veterinarian. Check your pets routinely when they come indoors. Keep your yard or property well-manicured and clean of debris.

For more information on Mississippi ticks and diseases, review the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station Bulletin 1150, "A Guide to the Ticks of Mississippi," at <http://mafes.msstate.edu/publications/bulletins/b1150.pdf>.

MALTB Needs Help Locating Stolen Equipment

By Jessica Spears
Mississippi Agricultural & Livestock Theft Bureau

The Mississippi Agricultural and Livestock Theft Bureau (MALTB), the law enforcement division of the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce, needs help locating a tractor and cutter that have been reported to MALTB as stolen from Humphreys County.

On the night of June 7 or early morning of June 8, equipment was stolen from property located on Richland Road outside of Silver City, Miss. The equipment includes a Kubota L3800 tractor equipped with a LA524 front end loader and a Land Pride 60" cutter.
