Flash Floods Pose Hazards For Ag Commodity Production

By Nathan Gregory
MSU Extension Service

Portions of central Mississippi and the lower Mississippi Delta saw more than 1 foot of rain between Aug. 21 and 25, and flash flooding will affect some agricultural commodities in these areas.

Torrential downpours dropped 8-13 inches of rain in much of Leake, Neshoba, Scott, Kemper, Hinds and Newton counties, as well as parts of surrounding counties, prompting road closures and evacuations.

The Clarion Ledger reported that the Pearl River Valley Water Supply District increased the discharge from Barnett Reservoir to 45,000 cubic feet per second on August 25 in anticipation of incoming water. The National Weather Service forecasts the Pearl River will crest at 36 feet by August 30 and threaten low-lying areas in Jackson and Rankin counties.

Numerous row-crop fields were saturated, and preliminary reports suggest that the crops most compromised will be early-planted cotton and soybeans that were nearly ready for harvest before the weather deteriorated.

Brian Pieralisi, cotton specialist with the Mississippi State University Extension Service, spoke with growers ranging from the south Delta to the Black Prairie regions of the state. He said there were fields where cotton bolls were beginning to open when the storm arrived.

"No one is picking cotton yet, but we are close. We will have defoliation applications going out when this weather system clears," he said. "We can expect hard-locked bolls, some boll rot and sprouting seeds in the bur. Seeds will sprout in open bolls when the lint stays damp for several days in a row."

Pieralisi said the severity of damage on early cotton will hinge on how long it takes to get hot, sunny conditions for consecutive days.

"If the sprout dries up while it's still very small, it's not much of an issue," he said. "If the current wet pattern persists, that will only get worse."

MSU Extension soybean specialist Trent Irby said most soybeans in the affected areas were still growing before the flooding.

"The impacts on soybean will depend on the stage of development of the crop," Irby said. "This is one of those 'it depends' type of scenarios. Those acres that are ready or close to ready for harvest could absolutely be compromised with potential for seed sprouting in the pod and reduction in quality, and some later planted soybean acres that are less developed may come out of this round of weather with little to no impact to the quality of the seed."

Field damage will be a future problem resulting from the storm system. Phillip Vandever, MSU Extension agent in Yazoo County, said that, while rainwater is exiting fields, soggy soils will not support farm machinery until fields receive a break from the precipitation.

"Once we do get sun and start getting into the field, the crop itself will be dry, but the ground won't be," he said. "Growers will have to rut some of their fields up to get their crop out. It will be costly to go back and fix the fields and repair farm roads."

While there were still numerous full corn fields in his area, Vandever said the crop was at an advanced enough stage to withstand major damage.

"One good thing about the corn is, unless we get to where stalks start falling and lodging, the kernels are pretty hardy," he said. "I haven't seen any stalks falling so far."

Reports on poultry houses affected by the rains are still being gathered, but the Peco poultry processing facility in Sebastopol was closed due to flooding on August 24.

Commissioner Andy Gipson Addresses Elected and Federal Officials Flood Panel and Stresses the Urgent Need to Finish the Yazoo Backwater Area Pump Project

By Andy Gipson
Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce

Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Andy Gipson addressed a panel of elected and federal officials who met to discuss flooding in the South Mississippi Delta. The panel included Senator Roger Wicker; Senator Cindy Hyde-Smith; Congressman Bennie Thompson; Chair of the White House's Council for Environmental Quality Brenda Mallory; federal officials from the U.S. Army Corp of Engineers, EPA, FEMA, and the U.S. Department of Interior; a host of state legislators; and city and county officials. Commissioner Gipson stressed the urgency to finish the pumps and gave the following remarks.

I would like to thank Senator Wicker and our congressional delegation for inviting me here today to address an urgent need facing Mississippi's South Delta Region. I would also like to thank Chair Brenda Mallory, Chair of the White House's Council for Environmental Quality, and other federal officials for being here today in Vicksburg, Mississippi, to listen to our concerns with flooding. According to its website, the mission of the Council for Environmental Quality is to "improve, preserve, and protect America's public health and environment." We strongly believe there is no better way to protect the public health and environment of the South Delta than to finish the pumps.

One major issue that I want to bring to attention that is specific to Mississippi is the Yazoo Backwater Area Project. The Yazoo Backwater Area Project was authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1941 and was designed to alleviate backwater flooding in the Mississippi South Delta Region and protect the livelihood of area residents. The South Delta is comprised of Humphreys, Issaquena, Sharkey, Warren, and Yazoo counties. Agriculture is a primary source of employment within these counties and associated local communities. The only component of the Yazoo Backwater Project that has not been completed is the pump station that was part of the original design. The pump station would prevent flooding of nearly 200,000 acres. The EPA vetoed the Yazoo Area Pump Project in 2008, even though it was a federally-authorized U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (Corps) Civil Works project. In November 2021, the EPA announced that it would allow the 2008 veto to stand.

The Yazoo Backwater Area of Mississippi has experienced significant flooding nine out of the past 11 years, which has devastated local economies and natural resources. This area also experienced minor flooding in the past two years, both in 2021 and 2022. If the pump station was in place, much of this man-made devastation could have been prevented. During 2019, over 550,000 acres flooded in the Yazoo Backwater Area, of which more than 225,000 acres were agricultural cropland. Most of this cropland was not planted that year due to the flood. Within the flooded region, 687 homes were affected by the floodwaters, with at least 252 categorized as having major damage or destroyed. The economic and environmental impact to the South Delta was devastating. The estimated economic impact to crops alone was $617 million. In 2020, approximately 490,000 acres flooded in the area once again. Of those acres, 196,000 acres were cropland. The backwater floods of 2019 and 2020 are the two highest backwater flood events since the completion of the Yazoo Backwater Levee and Drainage Structures in 1978. Much of the devastation that South Delta residents face now can be prevented if construction of the Yazoo Backwater Area Pump Project is completed.

As a result of frequent and historical flooding in the Yazoo Backwater, the Corps conducted a study in 2020 using new and current environmental data to re-evaluate the recommended plan to complete the Yazoo Area Pump Project. Findings of the study recommended a new plan that would reduce average annual flood damages to urban and agricultural areas through a combination of structural and nonstructural flood damage reduction features, minimize adverse impacts through project design, and provide a net gain in environmental value to the entire

Commissioner

Yazoo Backwater Area. The study also recommended that the location of the pump station be moved approximately eight miles northeast of the original location. Additionally, mitigation was recommended to compensate for any unavoidable losses to environmental resources from the construction, operation, and maintenance of the project. The new plan represented a balanced approach to address flood damage reduction and environmental issues using the new environmental data.

Mississippians in the South Delta, farmers, state and local leaders, the EPA and the Corps were united in a plan, and in agreement on a solution reached in 2020 to finish the pumps. We have strong confidence in the research of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and we believe the pumps provide the long-term solution necessary to alleviate the perpetual flooding in the South Delta.

For the aforementioned reasons, I want to reiterate to all of those present and to all of those who will listen in Washington, D.C., the urgent need to finish the pumps. If the goal of the federal government is to improve, preserve, and protect America's public health and environment, we ask that you reconsider and complete the pumps as designed.

Commissioner Andy Gipson addressed a panel of elected officials who met to discuss flooding in the South Mississippi Delta. He stressed the urgency to finish the Yazoo Backwater Area Pump Project.

Attention Sugarcane Growers

It's time to take orders for sugarcane seed stock. The cost is 50 cents per stalk. We will start cutting seed cane in mid-October and have it available for pickup shortly after. As the sugarcane is cut, we will assemble orders and notify buyers of the pick-up date.

PLEASE INDICATE THE NUMBER OF STALKS WANTED IN THE BLANKS BELOW AND RETURN TO THE BELOW ADDRESS OR EMAIL/CALL BY OCTOBER 1st.

Growers will be notified if there is not adequate seed stock to fully fill each request.

To allow us an opportunity to replant the CP52-48 variety in a new location this year, we will not be offering it for sale. The following varieties will be available in 2022.

Syrup varieties (sold in 100 stalk lots - stacked in loose piles, not tied):

_____ Stalks CP 36-111- pale green to greenish yellow and a purplish color appears when leaves and sheaths are removed, and the stalks are exposed to sun. This cane tends to make a light-colored syrup and can be prone to lodging.

_____ Stalks CP 67-500 - a bluish-gray color with a heavy waxy bloom. The stalks are shorter and slightly larger in diameter than CP 36-111. Has a good resistance to lodging.

Chewing variety (sold in 50 stalk lots - stacked in loose piles, not tied):

_____ Stalks CP 31-511- bluish red with a less tough outer wall for easier cutting and a softer interior for easier chewing.

Payment is due at pick-up (cash or check).

Please include your phone number so that we can call to set a specific date to pick up your sugarcane order.

If you decide to cancel your order, please let us know ASAP.

Magnolia Gardens

Phase 1 of Magnolia Gardens is complete, and it is beautiful! Located at the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum in Jackson, Miss. This project is 100% donor funded and is a beautiful way to honor the achievements such as graduation, promotions, excellence in work, birthdays, anniversaries, new baby, retirement, and any special occasion you can imagine. You can also donate in memory of a loved one.

All donations go directly to the Gardens for beautification and for maintenance. For every donation we will mail certificates to the honoree and to the designated person for memorial gifts. You will receive an acknowledgement letter for your contribution.

Please contact Ginger Williamson, ginger@mdac.ms.gov or 601-359-1150 with questions or go to www.Msmagnoliagardens.com or scan the code to go directly to the contribution page. Thank you for choosing Magnolia Gardens to honor and to memorialize your loved ones.

For six decades, patrons have contributed funds in exchange for a magnolia tree planted in honor of or in memory of loved ones. Over the years the program has planted tens of thousands of magnolia trees along state highways. Due to new regulations, the program needed adjustments. Enjoy the beautiful garden created in honor of your loved ones located at the Mississippi Ag and Forestry Museum in Jackson, Mississippi.

The main garden has a formal design incorporating a variety of plants, trees, flora, stone, water, and wood. The gardens will be strategically lighted to enhance the beauty of the design at night. Enjoy the lush landscape encircling the bronze "Working Man" sculpture donated to the Ag Museum in 2011. Relax on the cypress wood seating to enjoy the container gardens and water features framed with cypress shutters. Floral beds offer seasonal beauty outside of the central area.

The goal is to complete the entire project in 2021, honoring the 60th anniversary of Magnolia Gardens, formerly known as Avenue of Magnolias. We thank you for your contributions thus far. In order to complete the gardens, including the Avenue of Magnolias, $150,000.00 in additional funds are needed.

All donations, regardless of amount, will receive a letter acknowledging their donation. Recipients will receive our Magnolia Garden certificate honoring their loved ones.

Donations exceeding $5,000 will be acknowledged with a plaque at the garden site.

Ag Museum Team Receives Oral History Grant from Mississippi Humanities Council

By Amie C. Clark
Mississippi Agriculture
& Forestry Museum - MDAC

The Ag Museum is excited to announce the receipt of an oral history grant from the Mississippi Humanities Council. Oral history is the collection of stories and memories from the people who lived and experienced these things first-hand. It is a unique way to preserve the culture that accompanies many of the artifacts we hold in our collection. Mississippi Humanities Council offers this grant to institutions in an effort to encourage the collection of our unique Mississippi history.

The initial focus of this grant will be on the Fitzgerald Collection. Prior to his death in 1991, Mr. Frank Fitzgerald of Inverness, Miss., donated his entire collection to the Museum. He and his wife Erva Mae were avid collectors, passionate about preserving the history they found in junk stores and antique shops. Mr. Fitzgerald taught agricultural and vocational classes in Inverness where he shared his passion for history and collecting. Through the years, many of his students helped in adding to the Fitzgerald's collection. The Museum team has been in contact with many of these men and women. They are eager to share their stories and experiences surrounding the collection. Many have lovingly spoken of Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald like family and are excited to have the chance to share about their friend and his collection.

Collecting these stories will offer an exciting new dimension to the Museum collection. It will provide a unique interactive experience for the Museum visitors who will now have the chance to learn firsthand about specific artifacts and collections. Many of the participants we have talked with have already shared stories about helping Mr. Fitzgerald to build the unique wagon wheel chandeliers in the collection. They have shared about the storm that felled the tree used to make the stunning coffee table that sits in front of the brick fireplace. Through this project, visitors will not only be able to visit the collection, but they will also leave with a deeper sense of connection to the artifacts they've seen.

While we are initially concentration on the Fitzgerald collection, the oral history project will touch on all aspects of the Mississippi Ag and Forestry Museum. We are excited about the opportunities this grant opens for the entire collection. We look forward to connecting with Mississippi farmers and farm families as this project unfolds. We hope you will stay connected with the Museum to experience all the exciting new things we have scheduled.

This program is financially assisted by the Mississippi Legislature through the Mississippi Department of Archives and History and the Mississippi Humanities Council. Don't Become a Victim of Timber Theft

By Dean Barnard, Director
Mississippi Agricultural &
Livestock Theft Bureau - MDAC

For years, landowners and timber buyers bought and sold timber with only a handshake. Those days are over. One of the most dangerous things you can do as a landowner is sell your timber on a handshake, even to someone you have known and done business with for years.

The best way to prevent misunderstandings is to have a contract. This way everyone knows his or her responsibilities and what to expect. A well written contract will save the buyer and seller time and money.

The contract needs to express expectations, wishes and responsibilities of each person involved. Contracts state what each person can and cannot do and serves to resolve any disputes. Contracts should identify parties involved and include the complete name and address of each person in the contract, such as the landowner, buyer and the party responsible for cutting and hauling the timber. The date and place, including the city and county, the agreement was signed should be included as well. Another provision that can prevent problems is one that provides for or against assigning the contract to a third person.

Contracts need to have the exact amount to be paid and terms of payment. For a pay-as-cut sale, it is important for the contract to provide clear and concise instructions to the buyer as to how he or she is to pay and how he or she is to provide verification of timber quantity cut and paid for.

Contracts should address care of property and/or improvements. Detail each item of property that is subject to damage, such as fences, roads and bridges, and include property conditions before and after the end of timber harvest. Contracts should state where and which entrances and exits the buyer and logger can access, and if gates are in place, who is responsible for opening and closing of gates. The party responsible for paying for any road construction and/or repairs should also be addressed in the contract.

Contracts should include the length of the agreement as well as beginning and ending dates. Wet season logging should also be addressed. Contracts should have the signatures of everyone involved, dates the contract was signed and a notarization of the agreement.

The suggestions in this article do not cover all situations. Each timber sale agreement is different.
